Government Investigators Are in Lowell

Cotton Mill Strike Conditions Remain the Same

Investigators Sent Here by State Board of Arbitration—Will Confer with Labor Union and Mill Officials—Fewer Operatives Reported for Work This Morning—Other Strikes in New England Cities

Two government investigators arrived in Lowell this morning to confer with mill and labor union officials in an endeavor to bring about a settlement in the textile strike, which went into effect in the local cotton mills yesterday. The arbitrators are Harry J. Skeffington, U. S. commissioner of immigration for the port of Boston, and J. Morgan Mullen of the state board of arbitration. The investigators were sent here by the state board of arbitration and shortly after their arrival they conferred with President John Golden of the United Textile Workers of America, and later they arranged for a conference with the mill officials.

The various organizations involved in the strike held meetings this morning and later reported to the strike committee. The reports, so stated President Golden, were to the effect that a big gain in the number of strikers was made this morning. Quiet picketers were placed at the gates of the mills with instructions to report as to the number of operatives who went to work. Mr. Golden stated later that according to reports, about 80 per cent of the operatives did not report for work this morning.

Speaking about the strike and the cause of it, Mr. Golden stated emphatically this morning that the grievance was not one between the mill officials and the loomfixers, but one between the corporations and the operatives in general. He said the ten per cent increase was not accepted and the strike was ordered not alone for the loomfixers or for organized labor, but for all the operatives employed in the mills. The mill officials admit that the strikers made some gain this morning, but they claim that every department of the various plants is in operation and that means that more than 130 per cent of the help are at work.

Stationary Firemen

The stationary firemen who are employed at the Appleton Co. and who left their work yesterday returned to work this morning. One of the officials of the Stationary Firemen's union stated to a Sun reporter that the firemen at the Appleton Co. left their work on their own volition. He said they had not been ordered out by the union and had had no request from the United Textile Workers of America to go on strike. He said the men conferred with him yesterday afternoon and after being informed that their action would not be sanctioned by the union, they decided to return to work.

Mass Meeting

A mass meeting for the women weavers of this city will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Associated hall. The meeting will be presided over by President John Hanley of the Lowell Textile Council and the gathering will be addressed by President John Golden and Secretary Treasurer Sarah A. Conboy of the United Textile Workers of America.

It was stated this morning that through the efforts of Commissioner Warnock the hall of the Carman's union in Ruel's building had been secured free for the use of the strikers, the hall at 22 Middle street, where meetings were held yesterday and today, being inadequate for the large gatherings.

The committee which is conducting the strike is composed as follows:

John Hanley, Lowell Textile Council, chairman; Frank N. Stimpson, Lowell Textile Council, secretary; Walter G. Roche, Beavers' union; Joseph Jemery, Loomfixers; Ernest Arsenault, Dresser Tenders; Frank Balasa, Polish Textile Workers; Thomas Allard, Carders and Pickers; William McLaren, Twisters and Mrs. Thomas J. Reagan, Cotton Weavers.

Quiet Picketing

The mill gates were thrown wide open this morning at the usual time, but in order to give the tardy workers or those who changed their mind at the last minute an opportunity to enter the factories, the gates were kept open until after 7 o'clock. Groups of strikers were in evidence in various points in the vicinity of the mills, but not the slightest trouble was reported. Picketers for the Tremont & Suffolk were stationed at the bridge at the corner of Moody and Suffolk sts., while others, who were looking after the Merrimack mill located themselves at the corner of John and Merrimack streets. The picketers were told not to encroach upon the companies' land and were also told to be careful as to their every action.

Strike at Worcester

WORCESTER, July 2.—One hundred and fifty employees of the Pondville Woolen mill struck today when they were told a request for a pay increase of 10 per cent had been denied. The only employees left in the mill were the spinners who were granted a 10 per cent raise.

R. I. MILLS STILL RUNNING

PAWTUCKET, R. I., July 2.—Although crippled by the weavers' and loomfixers' strike, nearly all the mills in the Blackstone valley are running as usual today. D. Goff & Sons of Pawtucket are operating only 80 per cent of their plant. Two small concerns, the Darlington Textile Co., and the Eagle Weaving Co., have granted the unions' demands, and are paying loomfixers and weavers $32.35 and $33 respectively.

President Davis Gives His Indorsement for the Benefit of Others

President Morton H. Davis of Davis Monumental Works, corner Webster and Fremont streets, Worcester, Mass., gives his indorsement for the world's greatest remedy, Vitalitas. We don't suppose that there is a better known person in Worcester or Massachusetts than Mr. Davis, who has been in the monumental business for 21 years in that city. Mr. Davis, a man of striking personality, with very few words, has this to say regarding the great natural remedy, Vitalitas: "To my friends and the public: This is something unusual for me to recommend or indorse a remedy of any kind, but inasmuch as I have found Vitalitas to be all that is claimed for it, and even more, I consider it nothing short of my duty to say a few words in behalf of this great remedy, especially for what it did for me. For years I have been troubled with rheumatism and indigestion. I also lost weight and strength. I could never find anything that would do me any good until I started on the Vitalitas treatment. Now my strength has returned, I have gained eight pounds in weight. Can eat anything, and my pains are gone. All this is due to the exclusive use of Vitalitas, and I want my friends to know that I consider this one of the greatest remedies on the market, and those that suffer from rheumatism, indigestion, stomach and kidney ills should start this treatment at once. (Signed) 'M. H. Davis, 23 Montague street, Worcester.'"

Mr. Davis, the Merrimack Square Druggist, says: "When we get such statements as that of Mr. Davis, we should be more than convinced of the merits of Vitalitas."—Adv.

TRAFFIC RULES

Council Passes New Ordinance Regulating Motor Vehicle Traffic Downtown

Lieut. Harris of the Fire Department is Placed on the Pension List

A new ordinance regulating motor vehicle traffic in the downtown section of the city was passed to be enrolled and ordained at this morning's regular meeting of the municipal council and will be operative within 10 days. The ordinance was introduced by Mayor Perry D. Thompson.

Mayor Thompson stated that the present traffic regulations were not satisfactory and that in some instances the police had no power to enforce traffic rules. The salient features of the new regulations are that no motor vehicle, operated in the streets of the city shall exceed 15 miles an hour in any part of the city which is thickly settled. Areas where in vehicles may stand only for loading or unloading passengers are defined and apply to the downtown section. The amount of time that vehicles may stand in one place is regulated, according to the density of traffic.

Pershing's Men Capture Vaux and 275 Germans

Americans Surprised Huns Near Chateau-Thierry and Gained Important Ground—Effective Assistance to American Artillery by French—Allies' Position Greatly Improved—British Repulse German Attacks

The allied line has been moved forward in the important sector northwest of Chateau-Thierry, where the Germans in their late spring rush between the Aisne and the Marne made their nearest approach to Paris.

Success For Americans

American troops figured conspicuously in this operation carried out last night in conjunction with the French. They captured the village of Vaux, two miles west of Chateau-Thierry, and the heights lying to the west-northwest of the captured hamlet.

Some unimportant wooded land also was secured and held obtained on new sections of the main highway leading from Chateau-Thierry to Paris.

Americans Capture 275 Huns

In overrunning this ground the American forces took 275 Germans prisoner, including five officers, together with numerous machine guns and quantities of material. The French took a score or more of prisoners, bringing the total up to more than 300.

Effective Assistance By French

Effective assistance to the American infantry in their forward dash was evidently given by the French artillery, which is posted on hill 204, about midway between Vaux and Chateau-Thierry.

From this eminence, which forms the bastion of the defense near the apex of the Germans' Marne salient, the allied line has been carried forward all the way to the point beyond Vaux, making the position a greatly improved one for either offensive or defensive purposes.

Great Improvement in Allied Line

This operation was evidently a continuation of the Franco-American forward movement carried out by local attacks which have been progressing actively in late in this sector. It already has resulted in the straightening

SUNK BY U-BOAT

WASHINGTON, July 2.—The Belgian steamer Chiller was sunk 1400 miles off the Atlantic coast on June 21, the navy department announced. Twenty-five survivors were picked up by a sailing vessel on June 27.

The following statement was issued: "The navy department is informed that the Belgian steamship Chiller was sunk by shellfire from a German submarine about 1400 miles at sea from the Atlantic coast on June 21. Twenty-five survivors were rescued on June 27 by a sailing vessel. First information was received last night. The Chiller was a ship of 2960 gross tons."

STEPHEN H. SCRIBNER JOINS THE NAVY

Stephen H. Scribner, son of Commander E. H. Scribner, U.S.N., of Tyler Park, this city, was enlisted at the local navy recruiting station this morning as a seaman and was forwarded to Boston for final examination. Scribner has recently returned from England and Scotland, where he was with a New England saw mill unit for a year or so. This unit has been disbanded and as it held no military jurisdiction over its members, Scribner was allowed to return home. He was unable to remain out of the service, however, and eventually joined the branch in which his father is serving.

Other recruits at the local station today were: Thomas J. Fitzsimmons, 178 Fayette street; John T. Dwyer, 23 Sydney street; Alfred J. Beaudry, Marlboro; Carl J. Lavierre, Marlboro. Recruiting Officer John F. Walsh, who is in charge of enlistments for the merchant marine in this city with headquarters at the Ligoott store in the Merrimack street, has signed up the following men within the past few days: William N. Asselin, 313 West Fourth street; Samuel Cohen, 137 Howard street; Blaise R. Brunelle, 517 Pawtucket street; Vinal H. Gordon, Billerica. Asselin went to Boston today while the others were forwarded yesterday.

British Gain Ground

Should it continue to be pushed the movement promises further important results by the pinching-out process upon German salients which have made the line an irregular one between the Marne and the Clignon, near the northern end of the American sector. On the British front in the Picardy area, Field Marshal Haig's troops have been forced to fight hard to hold their new line northeast of Amiens, where on Sunday night they forced the Germans out of a valuable position on the high ground near Bouzincourt, north of Albert.

The Germans counter attacked strongly there last night but failed to regain their lost territory. Only at one point were they able to gain a footing in their old trenches, being repulsed with loss everywhere else.

Raiding Operations

On other parts of the front there were raiding operations in which prisoners were taken both by the British and the French. The Germans were repulsed in several raiding attempts.

Awaits Expected Blow

Germany's expected blow against the western front is still withheld. Meanwhile, the British and French continue to recapture small pieces of terrain in local actions. On the mountain front, west of the Brenet, the Italians have extended their success by the capture of two more heights.

Important Gains For British

Activity behind the enemy line is reported to be on a greater scale than last week, but the Germans have given no sign of where they will attack. In fact, they have not even made strong attempts to retake the ground captured by the allies in the past 10 days. The latest gains by the British have been on the important sector between Arras and the Somme, while the French are active between the Aisne and the Marne.

Allied Airmen Active

Allied airmen are harassing the area behind the German lines with increasing violence. Aerial combats have been numerous and French and British airmen have brought down or sent down out of control 32 German machines and destroyed eight captive balloons. Railway junctions, air-dromes and other military targets have been bombed heavily, while British airmen keep up their bombardment of the district around Metz and eastward toward the Rhine. Mannheim again has been attacked. The Germans repeated their attempts to raid Paris Monday night, but met with no success.

Americans Aid in Barring Way

When the Germans attack they will probably find an American army corps aiding in barring their way westward. It is believed that the first American corps has been completed. Three divisions are in the line from northwest of Montdidier to east of Chateau-Thierry on the Marne.

Berlin Reports Capture of 101,454

Berlin reports the repulse of all French and British thrusts. A great portion of the German official report of Monday is given to recapitulation of the number of prisoners captured since March 21. It is claimed the Germans have taken 191,454 allied prisoners. Cannon taken are reported as 2475 and the number of machine guns as 15,024.

Italians Continue to Gain

General Diaz strengthened appreciably his position between Asiago and the Brenta in the operations of Saturday and Sunday in which Monte di Valbella, Col del Rosso and Col di Chelo were taken. The Austrians suffered severely from the Italian and allied artillery fire and lost 2000 prisoners. The Italian losses are reported as slight owing to the accuracy of the supporting artillery. Strong enemy counter attacks against Monte di Valbella were checked by the Italians. Vienna admits the loss of Monte di Valbella and Col del Rosso and says the Austrians withdrew to their former positions.

LOWELL BOY COMMENDED FOR BRAVERY

Arthur J. Mulligan of 15 Oak street, this city, has been commended by Secretary Daniels of the navy department together with eight other members of the naval armed guard on the U.S.S. William Rockefeller, which was torpedoed on May 18. Commendation was given in view of the fact that the members of the guard stood by their guns until their ship went down. Mulligan is a seaman and enlisted in the navy a year ago last April. He is the son of Mrs. Margaret Mulligan of 15 Oak street. Before enlisting in the naval service he was employed by the Butterfield Printing Co. He is 20 years of age. He had lived in Belvidere all his life and is particularly well known and popular in that section of the city.

Other men who received commendation were: Gunner's Mates Myron E. Huston, Paul M. John, Robert Moorhead, Hartwell, Ga. and Seamen Raymond P. Burke, Boston; Carl C. Martin, Two Harbors, Minn.; Ladislav J. Kasper, Cleveland; Samuel Mims, Jr., Dallas, Tex.; William E. Durch, Washington and William H. Schroeder, Cincinnati.

AMERICAN LABOR BEHIND THE WAR

In view of the present textile strike in this city, the announcement that Guy D. Gold, lately with the department of labor at Washington and one of the best versed men on the labor question in the country, is to speak in high school hall this evening on "American Labor Behind the War" will be greeted with more than usual interest. Mr. Gold's appearance here and the subject of his address were arranged weeks ago and there was no thought of a strike rising in progress in this city.

The meeting is the third of an open forum series being held here under the general direction of the New England Congress of Forums and the immediate jurisdiction of a local committee, of which Hugh J. Molloy is chairman. Admission is free and everybody is urged to attend for the subject could not be more opportune.

EX-GERMAN WINS THE S. A. R. MARKSMANSHIP PRIZE AT DEVENS

CAMP DEVENS, July 2.—1st Sergt. Charles Schnabel, German born and a German subject until he was naturalized here last week, won the Sons of American Revolution individual prize for rifle marksmanship. It was announced yesterday afternoon by Maj. George E. Carpenter, division ordnance officer.

Today he received a gold wrist watch and a silver identification tag as the prize. He made 87.43 per cent in 140 rounds. First Sergt. Schnabel left Germany several years ago, sailed the seas, did some hunting in the south and came here last September 5. He calls New York city his home.

"You may get a chance to use your marksmanship against your former friends," it was suggested to him. His reply was: "And I can lay 'em down cold, you bet." He has been the "topper" in Co. C, 304th Infantry, since fall, and they say that as a disciplinarian he's a wonder.

Co. E of the Boston regiment, composed mostly of Cambridge men, won the company prize among all the organizations competing. This was formerly Capt. H. H. Flower's company, and is now commanded by 1st Lieut. William H. Mason. B Company of the 304th Infantry was second and C Company of the 302d was third.

Version Ashley Field, president of the Massachusetts society, S.A.R., wrote Maj. Gen. Hodges that the organization wished to present the prizes "in memory of the accurate rifle fire on their forefathers at Lexington and Bunker Hill, and believing that nothing is more essential for the safety of the soldier defensively or for his success offensively than to know how to shoot and shoot straight."

List of Sharpshooters
The highest scores in each organization participating were made by the following:

301st Infantry—1st Battalion, Private I. C. Baird of Brighton, B Company; 2d Battalion, Corp. H. W. Beecher of Boston, G Company; 2d Battalion, Private Ruffalo Guidotte of Bristol, R. L. M. Company.

304th Infantry—1st Battalion, Corp. Reuben Wood of Fall River, B Company; 2d Battalion, Private Arthur F. O'Neill of Holbrook, G Company; 3d Battalion, John Connors.

303d Infantry—1st Battalion, Corp. John F. Canner, B Company; 2d Battalion, 1st Class Private Seth W. Bull, F Company; 3d Battalion, Corp. Bert R. Middleton, I Company.

304th Infantry—1st Battalion, 1st Sergt. Charles Schnabel, C Company; 2d Battalion, Sergt. Russell F. Walker of Waterbury, E Company; 3d Battalion, Sergt. William Rowe of Greenwich, Conn., K Company.

301st Engineers, Sergt. Joseph E. Thorley, Central Falls, R. I.; 301st Ammunition Train, Private Harry P. Pong of Fisherville, G Company; 301st Trench Mortar Battery, Private Benjamin F. Parsons; 692d Engineers, Private L. M. Anderson.

Another honor went to the 304th Infantry yesterday, in winning the Capt. J. E. L. Warren cup for the crack trench mortar platoon honors. This platoon, commanded by Lieut. Thomas J. Mahoney of Portland, contested with the 303d Infantry platoon, commanded by Lieut. Cornelius Lawrence of Taunton, and it was a tossup, or, as Capt. Warren put it: "There's not a two-penny cuss between them; they're both about as neat a lot as you could find in an army." The cup went to the 304th on its season's record.

First Lieut. Rector Tremblay of Greenfield, who has been assisting Capt. Warren with the trench mortars, was yesterday assigned to the 304th.

Capt. Hall Back in Ayer

work with the intelligence department at Washington about two months ago, returned yesterday to the division intelligence office and received congratulations. He will remain in intelligence work here. Capt. Hall was a Harvard '07 graduate.

Second Lieut. John C. MacDonald of Greenfield, a Norwich university star, of the Headquarters Troop, was yesterday made a first lieutenant. And two band leaders, both musicians of note before being drafted, were made second lieutenants yesterday, Harrison Keller of Chestnut Hill, Newton, 301st, and Artillery, and Robert Gibb of Dedham, 302d Infantry.

First Lieut. Miles Weeks was ordered to New York university to instruct.

Private Frank Cassidy of 139 North avenue, Burlington, Vt., who came into the army last Friday, died yesterday at the Base hospital, of blood poisoning due to an infected boil.

Ex-Sergt. John L. Degnan, 301st Engineers, of Providence, was sentenced to three years of hard labor by general court-martial for being absent without leave from December 17 until May 24, when he surrendered himself in Providence.

Jiu jitsu lessons at the division schools started yesterday with the 301st Infantry. Other regiments will get their instruction later.

PRIV. A. LAJEUNESSE REPORTED MISSING

Private Arthur LaJeunesse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph LaJeunesse of 37 Trotting Park road, has been reported missing in France. His parents received this information in a telegram last evening from the war department. Private LaJeunesse is a member of the regular army. He enlisted in Co. M, 23d Infantry, about a year ago and went to France in September. He is 20 years of age.

THE YANKEES NOW ARE "ATTABOYS"

By Newspaper Enterprise Association
LONDON, July 2.—Just when Londoners had become accustomed to calling the American soldiers "Yanks" they've learned a new appellation for them which they declare is even more appropriate.

It's "Attaboys!" American baseball fans will recognize its source immediately.

"Yanks" gained its popularity before the great American pastime was played so generally in England and in France.

When the English heard the Yankees cry "Attaboy!" as some player hit out a three-bagger, they immediately started an inquiry into the meaning of the term. One English paper described it thus:

"The term expresses the satisfaction of the spectator with some meritorious performance of a player. Literally, it means 'That's the stuff, my boy!'"

All the London papers took it up, with the result that in London, at least, the Americans are now almost unanimously called "Attaboys."

CROWN PRINCE IS BEING IGNORED

(By N.E.A.)

LONDON, July 2.—Emperor William is doing his utmost to put the crown prince into the foreground into the minds of his people, but he seems to be having a tough time of it.

The German war correspondents, says an Amsterdam despatch, are willfully ignoring the prince's military merits. During the recent offensive on the Aisne and Marne, which the Kaiser tried hard to popularize as "the crown prince's battle," the Hun heir was deliberately slighted. All the credit for the gains made was given to the individual generals in command.

In the accounts of the Kaiser's visits to the front the correspondents do not mention his son's name.

Of course he's furious about it, but what can he do?

BRIG.-GEN. RUCKMAN TAKES OVER THE DUTIES OF PROVOST MARSHAL

BOSTON, July 2.—To enable him to carry out certain plans, Brig.-Gen. John W. Ruckman, commander of the department of the northeast, has taken over the duties of provost marshal. It was stated today at the department headquarters that the change would not be permanent. The provost guard is undergoing reorganization, and will ultimately be composed of details of United States guards.

INTERESTING LETTERS FROM LOWELL SOLDIERS IN THE WAR ZONE

Private John J. Kearns of Battery B, Fifth Field Artillery, in France, writes an interesting letter to his brother-in-law, David Bourgeois of Dracut, who enlisted in the national service a year ago last May. This is the first news which Mr. Bourgeois received from him since last August.

France, May 25, 1918.
Dear Dave: Just a few lines hoping they find all the family in good health. Tell your mother there is nothing to worry about, because American soldiers are as well protected here as we could be at home. We get good food and clean clothes whenever we need them.

They had mass in a church last Sunday near where we are stationed, well within the firing line. Can you beat it? Each village, no matter how many houses there are, has a good-sized church. You can see the steeples for miles around. I was in a church the other day that had been shot up. Everything was lying around as though the occupants had been obliged to get out in a hurry. I have seen hundreds of villages with not a single house standing.

Massachusetts soldiers went through our street one day and I never knew it until they had gone. I haven't seen a single person that I know since I left Lowell. I have been here since Aug. 12 and don't want to be any place else until the finish. Give my best regards to everybody.

JOHN J. KEARNS.

Private Kiernan

More interesting letters from Private Cormick A. Kiernan, the Lowell boy who was injured in France recently, have come to light. Following are extracts of letters dated June 9, which were received by his mother, Mrs. Michael Kiernan, and his sister, Miss Julia Kiernan.

Dear Mother and Dad: Just a line hoping it will find you in the best of health as it has left me. I know that long before you receive this letter you will have read all about our battle and its results. Well, don't let false reports worry you. It will be only a short time before I shall be able to take my place again in the front line.

Dear Sister Julia: I received your letter on June 6, 24 hours before I went into battle, and it gave me a lot of courage to perform my duty. I suppose that by this time you have learned about my being wounded. Well, it is up to you to keep the folks in good spirits. I am on the road to recovery and by the time this letter reaches you I hope to be on my way back to my pals. I am getting the best of care and the best of food and with about 10 days more of it I will be able to get back to my company.

The German papers said that we were good sports, but that we would not be able to stand the gas on the western front. Von Hindenberg said that all he would have to do would be to blow his breath at us, but, believe me, Sis, he would have to have a full tub of garlic to stop us, because that is the only smell that we cannot stand. With love and best wishes from Your brother,

CORMICK.

William F. Kilbride

The following letter has been received here from William F. Kilbride, who is with the Engineer Train Company, 101st Engineer Regiment, "Somewhere in France."

France, June 14, '18.
Dear ———— I am still in the land of the living and in fine health and fettle. I have gained about 20 pounds, and am eating everything in sight. I earnestly hope you are all well at home.

Well, ———— I suppose you are curious about things over here, and I will try to give you an outline of conditions so far as it is permissible.

The weather for the past week has been ideal. We have sunny skies, and the scenery throughout this sector is something splendid. The land is under cultivation, and all kinds of plants and flowers are in bloom. I have at last the pleasure of seeing sunny France living up to its name.

The farms are only a few kilometers behind the firing lines, and Nature seems so peaceful, that it makes me sometimes think I am dreaming and the war is a myth, but, however, the

ANIMAL ACT WITH THE ROBINSON SHOWS

Few who see wild animals in cages realize the vast amount of trouble, danger and expense necessary to get them there. The greatest danger lies in capturing the wild animals in their native country. With the John Robinson shows, which will give two performances in Lowell, Thursday, July 11 there are several hundred wild animals, most of which were captured in the forest and jungles of their native country.

There is not more ticklish or dangerous task than tracking lions in the vast Nubian deserts. For capturing full-grown lions large traps of various forms are used. One trap is square, one of the sides lifting upon a spring-like the old fashioned mouse trap. This trap is baited with a piece of fresh meat, and as soon as the lion has entered the trap the door shuts down and he is prisoner. More than a score of lions with the John Robinson circus were captured in this manner.

Elephants are generally caught in nooses. A number of men surround the elephant and finally a noose is thrown over his head. He is then securely tied to a tree and allowed to remain there until quiet. Tame elephants are then brought into use and appear to be sort of persuasive in making the huge animals tractable.

Tickets will be on sale show day at Liggett's drug store, 67 Merrimack street at the same prices charged at the grounds.

EARLY MORNING FIRE
A slight blaze on the floor over the smokehouse of Swift & Bailey in Dutton street was responsible for the ringing of an alarm from box 121 at 2:20 o'clock this morning. The quick response of the firemen prevented the fire from spreading and the damage was slight.

Save your coal and beat the Hun. Have your furnace cleaned and put in order now and save coal.

220,000 Americans Bar Road
to Paris — Expect Big
Hun Attack There

Yankees to Take 150-Mile
Front—1,000,000 Americans "Over" by July 4

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Resumption of the German offensive on the west front is now expected momentarily by army officials here. Gen. Pershing's reports, as well as French and British advices from the front, have shown increasing enemy activity day by day, indicating that the Germans are preparing for another assault.

There is great stir and movement among the Germans before the American lines around Chateau-Thierry. Part of the drive may be directed against this front in a renewal of the thrust at Paris through the Compiègne gateway. If so, an army corps of American troops stands shoulder to shoulder with the French again to block the road.

Composition of Regulars

Secretary Baker disclosed yesterday that organization of the 1st Army Corps, under Maj. Gen. Hunter Liggett, probably had been completed, although he made no announcement.

"I suspect," the secretary said, in reply to a question, "that several of our divisions are operating together as an army corps under command of Gen. Liggett. Whether any other divisions have been created into an army corps and a tentative army commander chosen, I have not heard."

It was learned, also, that the First, Second and Third Divisions (regulars), commanded respectively by Maj. Gens. Robert L. Bullard, Omar Bundy and Joseph T. Dickman, are included in the first corps and all are either at Chateau-Thierry or at Cantigny.

Germany's Greatest Effort

The corps organization plan, however, calls for six divisions, four combatant and two replacement, and, with the necessary artillery units and other additional troops, the total strength of a corps would be nearly 220,000 men. Undoubtedly Gen. Liggett has all the elements necessary for his corps, if his organization is complete.

With this army corps in the theatre where great events are believed to be impending, the expected German thrust assumes new significance here. The opinion is general among officers that the blow now in preparation is to be the heaviest yet struck.

Unless they mistake the signs, the Germans are getting ready for the crucial moment in their great effort to wrench victory by force before the full American fighting power can be brought to bear against them.

1,000,000 Yankees by July 4

The belief of Gen. March, chief of staff, that the allied situation is "extremely favorable," as expressed in a carefully weighed statement last Saturday, is believed to be shared by the allied leaders. The speed with which American troops have been rushed to France probably has played a large part in the confidence both here and in the allied countries that this new thrust of the Germans will fail as have the last two.

There is every reason to believe that by the 4th of July more than 1,000,000 American troops will have sailed. An official announcement to that effect as a part of the Fourth of July celebration is to be expected.

The fact that five American divisions have completed training with the British and been restored to Gen. Pershing since last March is another sign of the speed with which Gen. Foch is being supplied with fighting man power.

The recent stalling thrusts of the French and British at the enemy lines in Flanders and southwest of Compiègne, are regarded as showing the entire confidence of the allied leaders in the outcome, although weeks or months of better fighting may be in store.

Taking Over Front of 150 Miles

Sec. Baker had no advices yesterday to show that formation of the First Field army under Gen. Liggett had been entirely completed. Gen. Liggett is regarded as the logical organizer and commander of the First army, as he was Gen. Pershing's selection for commander of the First Corps. The rank of lieutenant general probably will go with the command.

Presumably Gen. Liggett's corps is regarded now as a part of Gen. Pershing's mobile force as distinct from troops in the army organization which is being built up to take over a definite American sector of the battle front.

The appearance of American troops at five points along the line between St. Mihiel and the Swiss border indicates that this whole stretch of 150 to 200 miles of the front is being rapidly becoming Americanized. The definitely placed American sector from the vicinity of St. Mihiel to the Moselle river is included and at present is the left flank of the whole sector, which the Americans seem destined to hold when they come fully into position on the right of the line.

If these indications are correct, the positions on both sides of Chateau-Thierry and near Montdidier, further north where the French and British lines join, are held by the American mobile units, thrown into to meet the emergency created by the German offensive.

NO WARNING

Sinking of Hospital Ships
a Deliberate Policy on
Part of Germans

British Mercy Ship with Sick and Wounded Tor-
pedoed—Many Lost

LONDON, July 2.—That the sinking of hospital ships is a deliberate policy on the part of the Germans now is placed beyond all doubt by the torpedoing of the British hospital ship Llandovery Castle, the newspapers say in their editorial comment today.

"In the presence of such unspeakable infamy deliberately repeated," says the Daily Chronicle, "it is a waste of breath to reiterate the abhorrence which everybody must feel. But we would invite the German people to ask themselves what is the use of their statesmen appealing, like Foreign Secretary von Kuehlmann, to be credited with 'probity and honor' while crimes so odious, dishonorable and unashamed continue to be carried out by the orders of their government."

The excuse for the attack on the Llandovery, continues the Daily Mail, was a lie and the German officer who told it did not believe it himself when he said to the captain: "You are carrying eight American flight officers." If there had been a particle of truth in the charge, the newspaper adds, the submarine captain had only to stop the Llandovery Castle, seize the eight officers and take them to Germany, as proof of allied guilt in using hospital ships for transports.

Many Lives Lost

LONDON, July 2.—A German submarine 70 miles from the Irish coast, on the night of June 27, torpedoed the 11,000-ton hospital ship Llandovery Castle, which had been chartered by the Canadian government and had been carrying wounded and sick from England to Canada for many months past. The ship was then on her way to England. She had on board 258 persons, including 80 men of the Canadian Army Medical corps and 14 female nurses.

Up to the latest reports only 24 of those on board, including the captain, have survived the treacherous attack, which came without warning.

"It was during the night of June 27, towards 10.30, that the crime occurred. The Llandovery Castle, steaming on her course at some 14 knots, showed the usual navigation and regulation hospital ship lights. Under the over-cast sky she was plain to see and could not be mistaken for anything but what she was.

"The first intimation of the presence of a submarine was a jar and the report of an explosion from aft. Then the lights went out.

"The rehearsed routine of the ship, however, held good, and along the darkened decks the crew groped to the boat stations and stood by for order to leave her.

DROP IN BREAD

But Yet the Price Remains
The Same

A horse hitched to a baker's wagon, owned by B. J. Begin of Moody street and driven by Joseph Roy of Pawtucketville, ran away in Worthen street at about 6.45 o'clock this morning, but fortunately was brought to a stop before any serious damage was done.

The horse was trotting along through Worthen street towards the mill when suddenly the nut holding the left rear wheel came off and the wheel dropped from the axle, tipping the cart over. The horse became frightened and ran away, smashing the harness to pieces, but was quickly brought to a stop by mill operatives who happened along. The driver was thrown out of the wagon, but fortunately was not injured. Two large boxes filled with bread were bounced out, and their contents spilled. This is the second runaway in which Mr. Roy figured within a few months, but in both instances he managed to pull through unharmed.

regulations made public yesterday by Food Administrator Hoover.

The federal trade commission charged that the millers had made a profit of 45 cents a barrel, despite the food administration's regulations limiting the differential to 25 cents. It develops that the commission's report was anticipated, as the administration's regulations were sent out June 17.

Millers whose profits at the close of the fiscal year June 30 are in excess of the Maximum permitted are required to credit the amount of the excess to the food administration to be liquidated by flour to be sold to the army, navy, marine corps and the food administration's grain corporation in New York at $1 a barrel.

The miller's books will be balanced as of June 30 and again as of July 1 to show the amount of the excess profits.

HEARING BY BOARD OF HEALTH ON PETITION FOR STABLE IN HOWARD STREET

A meeting of the board of health was held yesterday afternoon and after transacting routine business the board held a hearing on the petition of Friend Bros. for permission to erect a stable to accommodate 12 horses at 60 Howard street near the corner of Oak avenue. Herbert C. Merrill, representing his wife, Mrs. Margaret Merrill, and Alfred P. Sawyer, representing Nathaniel Davis, appeared as remonstrants on the ground that the location of the stable at those points would result in the gathering of flies and the creation of an odor, which would become a nuisance. The matter was taken under advisement.

BE 100 PER CENT.

WHEAT SAVER

Be a 100 per cent wheat saver and never serve wheat flour at your table until Uncle Sam changes his orders. Do not think one meal too little to count. Cut out all wheat foods from your menus.

At present Uncle Sam's general orders run this way:

Double the usual portion of cereal for breakfast and serve no toast; for luncheon use rice, plain, cooked in milk, with raisins or dates, scalloped with cheese (with no flour thickening), seasoned with tomato, or mixed with meat; or use some form of corn, as fried cornmeal mush or hominy prepared in various ways like the rice; use potatoes, but do not use bread.

For dinner a double portion of potatoes or potatoes and sweet potatoes, potatoes and rice, or potatoes and hominy will take the place of bread. Use barley flour, corn flour, cornstarch, rice flour, or rice water for thickening soups and sauces.

Use barley, tapioca, pens or beans in soup instead of macaroni or spaghetti and serve no croutons or crackers.

Use for dessert fruit in various forms, gelatine dishes, or rice and tapioca puddings.

Your bill of fare has been changed. Little has been added to your labor, and wheat is saved.

Agreement by Marine Engineers, Shipping Association and Ship Board

Ruling One of the Most Important of Board—Terms of the Agreement

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Strikes are prohibited for the period of the war under an agreement reached by the Marine Engineers' Beneficial association, the American Steamship association and the shipping board announced today.

Union members failing to submit grievances to the board of settlement will become subject to discipline by the beneficial association.

Overtime payment for all work done off watch at sea, except that necessary for the immediate safety of the vessels, was granted the union. The ruling is one of the most important of numerous far-reaching concessions granted by the board, doing away with ancient privileges accorded mates of calling men during their rest hours to any task they might find or devise, without extra pay. Such work now will be compensated at the rate of time and a half.

Overtime pay also will be given engineers kept on board ship at night in port when such work is necessary for the safety of the vessel.

Work not necessary for the ship's safety will be paid at double rates under similar conditions. It was ordered that the time and a half rate be 70 cents an hour and the double time one dollar.

Other demands allowed were $2 a day subsistence for chief engineers and $1.50 a day for assistant engineers and the payment of wages and suitable transportation back to the point where articles originally were signed in the event a ship is sold.

A BIG CELEBRATION IN ENGLAND FOR JULY 4

LONDON, July 2.—Preparations for the celebration of the Fourth of July throughout England practically have been completed.

In London the bell of St. Paul's will be rung as on the great British holidays, while the official observation of the day will be centered in a mass meeting at Central hall, Westminster, where it is planned to launch a plan for an American memorial, probably in the form of a statue of Washington, to be placed near the houses of parliament.

After the baseball game, at which the king will pitch the first ball, there will be numerous dinners.

Five hundred or more American soldiers will be brought to London for the celebration and there will also be formal celebration at all the American camps, for each of which not only the Americans but the British soldiers stationed nearby will be given a holiday.

At Sheffield accommodations have been prepared for 50,000 persons at the Army Navy baseball game and the field athletics between British and American units.

There will also be a special observance of the day in every hospital in Great Britain, where there are American soldiers or sailors.

The American Red Cross will distribute American flags, packages of cigarettes and tobacco and a personal letter of greeting to each patient and there will be special holiday meals. Convalescent Americans will be taken to the nearest American camp to witness the celebration there.

CZECH INDEPENDENCE RECOGNIZED BY ALLIES

PARIS, July 2.—Stephen Pichon, minister of foreign affairs, on the occasion of the presentation yesterday of the colors to the Czechoslovak army, addressed a letter on behalf of the French government to Edouard Dumes, general secretary of the Czechoslovak national council, recognizing the independence of the Czechoslovakians as a nation. The letter reads:

"At the moment when the first unit of the Czechoslovak army in France prepares itself, after receiving its flag, to go to a sector on the front with its French brothers in arms, the French government considers it just and necessary to proclaim the rights of your nation to independence, and to recognize officially the national council as the supreme representative of the future Czechoslovak government."

A telegram received by M. Pichon from Arthur J. Balfour, the British secretary of state for foreign affairs, says that the British government associates itself with the sentiments expressed by the French government in presenting the colors to the Czechoslovak army. Mr. Balfour says that the flag presentation represents "a new step in the great strife for liberty and security of small nations, especially those who in Austria-Hungary live under the tyranny of a foreign minority."

NAVY TO RUSH WORK ON BIG WAR CRAFT

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Steps to expedite as much as possible construction of the remaining 48 vessels, including battle cruisers and super-dreadnaughts, of the 156 authorized in the three-year naval building program, approved by congress two years ago, already have been taken by the navy department.

This was disclosed last night by Sec. Daniels in a statement reviewing the provisions of the $1,600,000,000 naval appropriation bill recently passed by congress, which President Wilson yesterday signed.

"The bill," said the secretary, "makes it obligatory to begin construction of all of the 48 vessels of the 156, the construction of which has not previously specifically been directed to be begun. I have regretted that lack of facilities due to the big demand for destroyers, transports and cargo ships rendered it necessary to somewhat abate the fine progress that was being made. However, I requested that the act be worded in this mandatory way, for it is my earnest desire and expectation to carry it out and I have already taken steps to expedite construction as much as possible."

NEWS OF THE DAY IN POLICE COURT

Abram and Barney Dinnerman were in police court this morning, charged with receiving stolen goods belonging to the United States Cartridge Co. The case of Abram was dismissed while Barney was ordered to pay a fine of $50.

Mary Cavanaugh, who was yesterday dismissed on a charge of drunkenness was in court again this morning for the same offense and was sentenced to three months in jail.

John Perry, W. Laforest, Sidney Bernstein, Fred Wolf, and Louis J. Laprise were ordered to pay fines of $5 each for neglecting to sound their automobile horn at the intersection of Chelmsford and Plain streets.

Yvonne Marchand, aged 14, charged with being a stubborn child, was placed on probation.

Omer Field was arraigned in court on a charge of illegal sale. He was given a fine of $5 and sentenced to one month in jail. He appealed the case.

Achilles Kapritzelis was charged with assault and battery on one of his fellow countrymen. Through an interpreter, the court gave him a reprieve and placed his case on file.

The case of Louis Bazikas, charged with keeping a disorderly house, was continued for one week. Jacob Ranas was found guilty of drunkenness and was ordered to pay a fine of $5.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

KEITH'S THEATRE

There's comedy galore in the offerings at Keith's theatre for the first half of the present week, and if you are fit to stand a side-splitting session lasting several hours you will find the menu much to your liking.

"A Pair of Sixes" is well known as a stage play. Many Lowell people have seen it. Others have not. Either way, it is a picture production. Those who have seen the stage play will realize how great is the opportunity of the film men to elaborate and make complete a popular play; those who have not seen the play will be provided twofold enjoyment.

Talor Holmes, a mobile-countenanced young gentleman, tall, brisk and good to look at, plays the leading role—that of one "T. Rogers Johns," a partner in a picture manufacturing concern. Holmes is about as happy a comedian as Lowell has ever seen. He works with a lot of natural abandon and his methods of making himself known from delicate situations are uproarious.

"George Nettleton" is the other half of the "Bureka Digestive Pill Co." partnership. He and "Boggs" find it impossible to agree on anything, and they will not even agree to disagree. Their concern is a most flourishing one, but each partner firmly believes that his own personal ideas are what brought about the great success of the company.

The president of a well known drug company is about to give a huge order to the partners, but they make themselves appear so foolish by their quibbling, that he leaves in disgust. Then the partners begin to see the light.

The firm's attorney is called into consultation and he proposes that the partners be dealt a hand of poker to see who is to run or ruin the business for a year. This job will go to the winner. The loser will have to serve as the winner's valet for that length of time, and for every misdemeanor or demonstration of lack of respect he will be fined $100. If either partner tells the terms of the agreement to anybody he will be fined $500.

The terms appear a little stiff at first, but "Boggs" is very willing to agree to them. "Nettleton" is not so optimistic, but eventually he agrees. The hand is dealt and "Nettleton" gets a pair of aces. For a moment "Boggs" is swimming, but he finally shows his gameness and starts on his mental duties.

From then on complications come thick and fast. In the first place, "Coddles," a slave in the "Nettleton" home, falls desperately in love with the new butler, much to the latter's distress. Then "Boggs" sweetheart comes to visit the "Nettleton" and she meets her fiancé togged out in butler's attire. She demands an explanation, but such explanation means the throwing away of a cool $500. Nothing doing. At length the attorney tells her the facts of the situation. She hits upon a plan whereby her loved one may be released from his bondage. She instructs him to make violent love to "Nettleton's" wife. The plan works successfully and in a short time the agreement is no more.

It's a well acted farce with plenty of action and a capable cast. "The Red-Haired Cupid" is a western comedy, a little more subtle than most affairs of that nature, but wholly enjoyable. A pretty girl, capable cow-boys, and a lot of western scenery combine to make up a delightful half hour's enjoyment.

"The Telephone Belle" is another rip-roaring comedy, filled with action. The Hearst-Pathé News shows scenes at the drawing of draft numbers in Washington last week, a military airplane attack on Baltimore, American soldiers in England and the recent circus train wreck. It is an all-round summer bill with a laugh tucked in nearly every foot of film. There will be a complete change of program for July 4.

the screen and they are as funny as ever. The Pathé Weekly shows views taken in all parts of the world and particularly interesting are those of cantonments and camps taken in this country.

One of the most pleasing numbers on the program is the vocal selections by Miss Margaret McDonough of Lowell. Miss McDonough is heard to advantage in two numbers, one a popular selection from "High Links" and the other, the old but always pleasing "Mother Machree." Arthur J. Marrel entertains with organ numbers and for the first three days of the week he is featuring the difficult masterpiece, "The Storm," which is given with all the "fixins," that is the electrical effects, which send sharp lightning streaks through the audience, while the roar of thunder is heard at a distance. This piece is remarkably well played.

The local Boy Scouts under the direction of Scout Commissioner Faulkner and Scout Executive Williams give an interesting and instructive demonstration of first aid work, which is very forcibly the training that the boys are receiving. The Honey Boy Four will sing this evening, while John J. Dalton is scheduled to entertain during the week.

LAKEVIEW PARK
Merry crowds are still dancing every afternoon and evening at Lakeview park and enjoying it to the limit, as well they might, with Miner-Doyle's 10-piece orchestra playing irresistible foot-stirring music and Barney Moran singing enticing dance songs through the megaphone. Try it any afternoon or evening this week. Try the howling alley Wednesday night, where the girl howling the high string will have her choice of a sofa pillow or a box of chocolates. Ride from your home.

IRISH SITUATION

Now Well in Hand—Success Attends Policy of the Resolute Government

Relations with England Expected to be More Cordial Than Ever

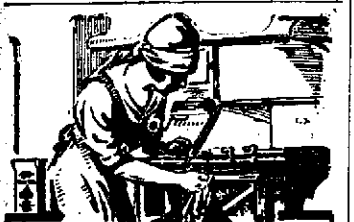

LONDON, July 2.—Ireland is on the eve of further logical developments of the policy of a "resolute" government, says a Dublin dispatch to the Daily News. The tale of proclamations is not complete. Indeed, in the nature of things, one proclamation must lead to another, for a man who stands still on an adventure such as this is lost.

Lord French, up to a certain point, probably has the situation well in hand. He has such and such power at his disposal and such and such reverse disposed in relation to such and such strategic conditions. He has a fair knowledge of the material opposition which any necessary measures of the government might be expected to encounter, and he believes he can estimate accurately the character and extent of the moral opposition.

Expected Lessening of Tension

"Some very interesting" information as to the methods to be adopted in the circumstances which may, or may not, arise, has come into my possession," writes the correspondent, "and they appear to me well suited to accomplish the desired result. All this is, of course, very satisfactory to law-abiding citizens here. England also will be glad to know that Ireland is, at last, to be governed by the world's dominant race.

"At the same time England can have no reasonable doubt that this is the right way to set about securing 50,000 Irish recruits for the British army. Lord French has no doubt his profound knowledge of the problem tells him the thing most needed is to enforce the respect of Ireland for Britain.

In this pleasing spirit of hope, faith and charity, we observe in Dublin look forward to a new phase in the relations between the two countries. We observe Dublin castle once more throbbing with efficiency and enthusiasm, alert, united and rejuvenated. Not for years has that patriotic institution been able to follow its favorite path so free from care, so unencumbered by doubts and cavillings.

Even Sinn Fein is Hopeful

"The Sinn Fein too is happy and hopeful. It asks for the moment nothing better of the imperial parliament. It greets Lord French as a friend in need, and Mr. Shortt, the chief secretary for Ireland, as his brother. The only people who seem to be discontented are the Irish party leaders. They appear to be convinced that somebody in London has deliberately set about to destroy the constitutional movement toward home rule in order to be able to say to America: 'Home rule is impossible here. There are no home rulers in Ireland, only separatists and pro-Germans.'"

BIG CROWDS AT BISTANY BROTHERS' SHOWS

The Bistany Brothers' shows, exhibiting every afternoon and evening this week on the Lakeview avenue grounds, have all the combined entertaining and exciting qualities of a midway, circus side show, vaudeville show, and Coney Island.

All the persons who contribute to make this big show what it is are there. The pink lemonade vender is there in all his glory. Everywhere on the big lot one hears the usual sounds of a big show with a few others added; the barkers for the dog, pony, and monkey shows who threaten to shout themselves hoarse; the ringing of the bell at the top of the tall pole when the husky chap at the bottom strikes the peg; the plunk of the ball as it misses the coon's head and strikes the net in the background. All the games and other amusements usually found in a big circus are there, from the boxing bouts, wrestling matches, merry-go-rounds, Ferris wheels and motorcycle races to the doll games, fortune tellers and ring games.

That the public of Lowell knows and appreciates the Bistany shows is made apparent by the fact that last night, in spite of the unfavorable weather, hundreds of people were there. The music from the Bistany Royal band broke upon them as they entered the grounds; they were tempted with hot dogs and lemonade; they visited the tent containing the "Ten in One," a remarkable set of side show freaks; they watched the wrestler as he met and defeated all comers; they gazed at the gypsies as they danced in their native fashion and sang their native songs; and they were simply dumbfounded at Professor Romano's display of magic. They found the monkey speedway to be a remarkable novelty and Schepp's dog and pony show was voted to be one of the best features of the circus.

One of the best amusement contrivances is the new set of flying horses which the circus acquired after leaving Lowell over two weeks ago. They are very beautiful and have a very close imitation of the galloping motion. Nothing is shown which by any chance might offend women or children.

The local evening newspaper is the paper that reaches the home when the whole family is there to read it. The Sun fills this bill in Lowell.

DAY IN THE LIFE OF NEW SOLDIER

This is the third article written by Maj. Gen. Hugh L. Scott, former chief of staff of the United States army, now commander at Camp Dix for The Sun and other papers having the service of the Newspaper Enterprise Association: Army life is so different from civil life, the tasks that each man is set to do, and the methods of accomplishing these tasks are all so different, that it might be interesting to the friends and relatives of the boys in the national army to hear something about the day's work of the new soldier.

With this thought in mind, this story of a day's work is written. It is written of life in a cantonment in the northern part of the country; the cantonment itself lies high and dry in a clean, well-drained area, and is largely composed of great barrack buildings, in which the men are housed and fed.

The young soldier tumbles out of a comfortable bed at 6.15 to the sound of the bugle blowing first call, and has 15 minutes to dress himself and get ready for the first formation of the day.

Reveille, blows at 6.30, he falls in with his comrades on his company street in line.

Mess call sounds at 6.50 sharp. He has until 7.30 to finish his breakfast, make up his bed neatly, sweep out under his cot, and do those little things around his bunk which his mother or sister generally did for him at home.

At 7.30, having cleaned himself and his own belongings, he turns out to clean up his company street to the sound of fatigue call, and for 20 minutes he is picking up papers thrown or blown into his company street, cleaning up the night before, match sticks, and odds and ends. This teaches him to carry anything he wants to throw away to the proper receptacle.

At 7.50 the bugle blows first call for morning instruction, and at 8 o'clock we find the soldier in line with his company ready for morning drill.

Now follow three and a half hours of hard work. Most of the morning exercises, to exercise and develop every muscle from his neck to his heels, and strengthen and temper his body. He is taught to breathe properly, to fill his lungs with pure air, to stand properly and to become a healthy specimen of American manhood.

From this he goes on to actual drilling.

He is taught to become one of a squad which acts under the leadership of a corporal, to march correctly, to turn, to obey commands promptly and unhesitatingly.

At intervals under the shade of a big tree the captain or one of his officers gives the men an informal talk on the personal habits of a good soldier, regulations governing the army, articles of war, military courtesy, or some other study or topic it is wise for the young soldier to know. So the morning goes, alternating drill and lecture, until recall blows at 11.45 and the young soldier is marched back to his barracks, for the well-earned meal, and rest.

One o'clock finds him in line again at drill call, and the afternoon is spent as the morning was, in alternating drill and verbal instruction. According to schedule, the afternoon is varied, and consists of sighting and aiming exercises, preparing the young soldier's shoulders, arms and neck for their task in firing his rifle; he is taught to hold his rifle steadily, to keep his head still, to sight accurately, so that when he goes on the rifle range he can be taught to shoot straight and fast. He has already begun to learn that his rifle is his best friend, and must be taken care of and handled properly.

Shortly before 5 o'clock the young soldier is dismissed from the drill ground, and goes to his quarters to clean up for the formal parade of the day, that of retreat.

This ceremony inspires reverence for the flag and all it stands for. Our young friend takes his place in the company, with his uniform and hat well brushed, shoes shined, rifle spotless. The bugles blow retreat, and then at the command, he, with his company presents arms, while the band plays "The Star Spangled Banner," and the flag is slowly lowered into the arms of the non-commissioned officer waiting to receive it and fold it so carefully that no corner of it ever touches the ground.

After retreat comes supper, plentiful and well chosen. After supper, with his mess kit washed and put away, the young soldier may join some chums and go to the Y.M.C.A., where he will find a warm welcome, many amusements and a home-like atmosphere, or he may go to the library and pick out his favorite book, or if he is a wise young gentleman, he will take some book on military matters and seek that instruction without which he cannot hope thoroughly to master the army game.

In all companies there will be a school for non-commissioned officers, conducted by one of the officers of the company, and to that school may go any young man who desires to qualify for non-commissioned rank. There are also schools for the men of the national army who are unable to speak English.

In addition to these evening schools, there is a series of technical schools giving special instruction to men having special qualifications. Soldiers appointed to these schools are relieved at certain times of the day to attend.

Thus passes his evening, and at 9.45 the bugle sounds the call to quarters, with a haunting warning note at the end, that tells him that the evening is nearly over, and he must hurry back to his quarters before "lights out," or he will undress in the dark; and then at 10 o'clock there sounds the last bugle call of the day—taps. The slow, sweet sound of the bugle floats over the great cantonment, and before its last note, light after light has winked out, and instead of the blaze of lighted windows, there is only the moon shining down on the sleeping camp.

THOUSANDS SAY ANGELUS PRAYER IN BOSTON

BOSTON, July 2.—At the suggestion of the committee on public safety, thousands of persons in this city said the official angelus prayer during the noon hour today, calling upon God for victory for the United States and the allies. Several thousand persons attending a public meeting on Boston common recited the prayer in unison. The saying of this special prayer was a part of the observance of "Loyalty week" in Boston which comes to a close Thursday, with the celebration of Independence Day.

15,000 POUNDS MEAT A MINUTE GOING TO ALLIES

One Hog Out of Every Four Being Sent Abroad.

Shipments of meat have been going to the allies for some time at the rate of 15,000 pounds a minute. As the shipments are kept up during a ten hour day they amount to 9,000,000 pounds daily. The meat goes to soldiers of the United States and the allies and to the civilian population of all the countries at war with Germany.

These statements were made by a prominent representative of the United States Food Administration.

No industry in the country has played a more important part in helping to win the war than the American livestock and meat-packing industry.

Swift & Company alone has been forwarding over 500 car loads of meat and meat products per week for overseas shipment.

TO CLEAN UP LIST OF 1917 DELINQUENTS

BOSTON, July 2.—Acting upon instructions from Provost Marshal General Crowder, Major Roger Wolcott, in charge of the draft in Massachusetts, today ordered local and district boards to "clean up the list of delinquents in the 1917 class." According to Major Wolcott, the authorities wish to clear up these cases before the 1918 delinquents materialize in large numbers. Many have already been apprehended but reclassification of registrants has brought to light scores of additional cases. The work of reclassification by local boards is now nearly finished.

CONVICTED SLAYER TAKEN TO PRISON

WORCESTER, July 2.—Patrick J. Sullivan, sentenced by Judge O'Connell to life imprisonment Saturday night after he had been found guilty of the murder of little Stella Soldi in Clinton on April 5, was taken to the state prison at Charlestown yesterday afternoon. Before leaving the Worcester jail, Sullivan said: "The jury found me guilty of murder in the second degree and I must accept their verdict. The person who murdered Stella Soldi was clearly guilty of first-degree murder. My testimony was exactly the same I gave Officers McCarthy and Molt in the New Haven jail and it is true I never saw or killed Stella Soldi. I appreciate the untiring efforts and work of my counsel in the preparation and trial of my case. I shall constantly be buoyed up in the hope that the guilty man will be caught and then I will stand free and innocent before the world."

The foggy weather is favorable to the submarines, but they do not seem to be doing very much nowadays.

The Bay State Street Railway company will have to revise its system of collecting fares on long routes. One conductor cannot possibly do the business on a crowded car on interurban lines.

Mrs. Ballington Booth wants eligible prisoners released that they may enter the army or navy. She does not realize the dignity of our military forces among whom there are no jail birds or convicted criminals of any kind. The prisoners should be compelled to perform some useful work especially at these times when labor is so scarce. They should be used in building roads or in other lines of public work.

COAL SUPPLY

Now is the time to get in a supply of coal for the winter. It is reported that the prospects of getting an adequate supply have improved within the past few weeks; but the only way of making sure of being able to keep warm next winter is to get the coal delivered in your bins.

THE FOURTH

The Fourth, the great anniversary of our independence, will soon be upon us. The arrangements are fast assuming shape for the big parade of the allied nations. It is hoped there will be a great turnout, one that will inspire our citizens with fresh enthusiasm and a greater spirit of co-operation and sacrifice for the success of the war. Let the eagle scream on the Fourth as never before.

LET ALL KEEP FIT

The soldier must be in good physical condition to do the best fighting—he must keep fit.

The general who commands him must keep fit—General Pershing would rather miss a meal than his setting-up exercises, and the general always is in the "pink of condition."

The commander-in-chief, President Wilson, keeps fit by giving two hours each day to exercise, in the open air if possible.

It is just as important that we, back in the home line trenches, keep fit, for we, too, must carry on day in and day out until the war is won. Ill health and lost work days are waste, and the nation cannot countenance waste during war. And by keeping fit, we release so many more doctors and nurses.

Only the fit man can do this bit—which is his best.

THE WAR OUTLOOK

The Allies have materially strengthened their position on all fronts. The Italians have practically stopped the Austrians and inflicted such severe losses that another drive is not expected from that source. On the contrary, there is a splendid opportunity for a strong allied offensive that will probably be taken advantage of in the near future.

On the western front an army of 220,000 Americans blocks the enemy's advance towards Paris, while the defense of the channel has been much improved, not only by an increase in the defending forces but in the recent capture of important positions held by the Germans.

The enemy, it appears, is planning a great drive—probably his last desperate effort, but so far as can be judged, the Allies are better prepared to meet it than they were at any time since the first drive in March.

MAPS OF THE SUBWAYS

It must have occurred to those who visit Boston only occasionally, that the Elevated company could popularize its subway lines to a very great extent by putting out a clear map of the system so that the general public might be assisted in finding out the various connections and ramifications. Since the Washington street lines were added to the subway system formerly existing, it is very much more difficult to pick out a definite route through all the subways, tunnels and transfer stations.

How is the occasional visitor to Boston to find his way in this labyrinth without some guide? The signs suspended at the stations may be sufficient for those familiar with the routes but not for the total stranger who is trying to make his way under the city. Perhaps it would cost considerable to get out such maps and have them available at all subway entrances; but they would be of great service to the public and would undoubtedly increase the revenue of the company by enabling the general public to use the subways more freely than they do.

CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR

Richard H. Long, a prominent shoe manufacturer, has declared himself a candidate for governor. Mr. Long has a record of liberality towards his employees that should bring him the support of most laboring people. He was the first shoe manufacturer in this state to establish the eight hour day with union wages; but that does not indicate his qualification for the high office of governor. When the war was declared he offered his shoe factory and equipment to the government to supply many articles needed by the army. In this way he brought much business to Massachusetts and at the same time rendered valuable aid to the government. That showed his patriotism. He assisted in framing the Federal Reserve banking law and his influence on other public questions has been strongly exerted on the side of progress, justice and right. In point of business experience, sound judgment and administrative ability, he is thoroughly equipped for the position of governor and he is apparently the sort of candidate who would meet favor with the people of Massachusetts.

With Mr. McCall out of the field this year there should be an opportunity to elect a democrat, one who would stand by President Wilson in conducting the war to final success.

FOOD SAVED THE ALLIES

During February and March our allies in Europe suffered from shortage of food. In London, in March, there were always 200,000 or more people in line waiting for a chance to get food supplies. In April the foods saved by Americans began reaching Europe in quantity. Says Mr. Hoover:

"The fortunate thing is, our food got over there just when the great spring offensive of the Germans got under way, and just when the morale of the allied peoples was going down very fast. Our food saved the day and we never could have shipped the amounts we did if it had not been for the enormous savings voluntarily effected by the American people."

"The American housewife is holding the line by feeding our Allies until we get an American army over there in force. If it had not been for her, the war would have been over."

Of course this authoritative information is startling, and we have all got to go right on conserving food, but the point we want to make in respect to this matter is, that it is authoritative information as to what the people's savings and sacrifices have actually accomplished. It is information a pound of which weighs more than a ton of programs, plans, specifications and promises, and giving such information should in much larger degree enter into the war management's policy.

The old claim that informing the American people as to what they have done is informing the enemy, is pretty much a worn-out gag, which in certain cases has had ulterior motives. Germany knows our resources, knows that we're in it for all we're worth and very likely knows what we've accomplished quite as well as most of the American people. Men and women are but grown-up children. Show a child that it has done big things, and, in nine cases out of ten, it will at once go at doing bigger things. Mr. Hoover declares that we saved Europe from collapse, last spring. Very good. We'll put her beyond reach of collapse so long as this war lasts.

LAUNCHINGS ON THE FOURTH

The United States is to celebrate independence day by launching nearly 100 ships for service in the war.

The launchings will include forty-one steel vessels of from 3,500 to 12,000 tons, making a total of about 230,000 tons; fifty-two wooden vessels of from 3,500 to 4,700 tons each, totaling 135,200 tons. Thus the grand total nets at least 475,200 tons.

The yards at which the launchings will take place with the number of ships turned out by each are:

Steel ships—Eastern yards, 12; Gulf yards, 1; Great Lakes, 11; Pacific coast, 17.

Wooden vessels—Eastern yards, 12; Gulf yards, 14; Pacific coast, 26.

Nothing in the line of shipbuilding at all comparable to this turning out of nearly a hundred ships ever occurred in the history of the world, and furthermore, nothing of the kind was ever before possible. Yet this is but a small item in the program that has been planned by the government.

As a result of the speeding up process, the number of ships now being completed is more than was formerly considered possible.

Chairman Hurley of the shipping board predicts that in two years hence the United States will have a merchant marine of 25,000,000 tons. Since entering the war, the addition from all sources has reached approximately 4,500,000. The work is but well started and is to continue through 1919 and 1920. Already the result of the increase has had a very noticeable effect in reducing the activity of the submarines. In a few months more the submarine menace will practically have been completely overcome. It is thus highly gratifying to know that the United States has been largely instrumental in checking the ruthlessness of the enemy at sea as well as on land. These are forerunners of the success that is to come.

WAR CONDITIONS NOT FELT HERE

There is great need of steadiness and patience among our industrial workers, in these times of inflated prices and labor scarcity.

Those who may feel restive should remember that we are at war and take care not to do anything that will in any way hinder the operations of war or affect the general support of the government by the people.

The people of this country have not yet begun to feel the activities of war as they are felt in other countries such as England and France, where the people make no fuss over wages so long as they get enough to eat.

Those who remember conditions here in the Civil war can tell a story that would make the profiteers of today ashamed of themselves. And we wish to remark here that profiteers are not all in the contracting or manufacturing class. The workman who is well paid and who makes an unreasonable demand for higher wages must be classed with the profiteers who hamper the government and retard production.

But in reference to Civil war times in Lowell, it might be said that grass was growing upon our streets, so to speak, so far as industrial activity was concerned. Few of the cotton mills had anything to do; the people could not find employment in which to earn a living except in the army, and the cost of living ran much higher than at present. The price of flour was then $24 per barrel; butter, 75 cents per pound; cheese, 50 cents per pound; kerosene, which was then used very largely for domestic lighting, was 15 cents per quart; tea, $1.25 per pound; and meat, eggs, and other commodities proportionately high.

If this war lasts two or three years longer, we shall see a far different state of affairs from what we have at present. Prices will continue to go up, labor will become scarcer, the food shortage more acute, and there will practically be no industries running except those which are necessary to the progress of the war.

For a people at war, and such a war, we are getting through it with remarkably little suffering or privation. The boys who go over are making nearly all the sacrifices and it is not for us at home to raise a great hullabaloo if we cannot get everything to suit us or if we are a little discommoded by the actualities of war.

SEEN AND HEARD

Don't you often wonder how you were ever able to stand the "heavies" during the long winter months?

We know a lot of grown-ups who would be eligible to participate in a certain "Big Baby Show" to be held in the very near future.

A fashion suggestion to the weather man: Please "dollar up" your best on the Fourth of July and come to Lowell.

The Proprietor Saves

There are all kinds of ways for war savings, including that of foregoing certain things on the lunch room bill even when it is obtainable, but seldom, if ever, does it mean any saving in the cost.

We've Seen It Appear So

One reporter wrote concerning the increased appetite which comes with farm work, using the descriptive phrase of "gustatory efforts," which leads to inquiry if a healthy appetite really requires any effort.

Those Higher Haircuts

Knowing him to be about as tight as the bark on a tree with regard to money matters, it was not strange that his associates twitted him about the heavy crop of hair he had grown for several weeks, and then to have it removed only within a few days of the time for the barbers to raise their prices.

Might Ask Berlin to Help

Advertising beach attractions would be simple and inexpensive if some piratical German U-boat skipper could be prevailed upon to take a cruise down the coast. It would have the sharks of the past two seasons beaten to a standstill. And, speaking of sharks, what has become of them this year?

Also, Walking is Good

When the Bay State road made out its new fare zone schedule for approval by the public service commission, it is only natural that allowances were made for a reduction in traffic, but perhaps not to the extent that has come about. Dealers in bicycles say they are pretty well sold out, picnic plans have been changed so that this revenue has either been much reduced or lost altogether, while flivvers flourish as never before.

Doing His "Bit"

When the war enthusiasm enthusiast sits at the next desk talked so much about his crops and the excess of care and time necessary to keep his garden coming along right, we were prepared for greater things than found on a tour of inspection. The man who calls four tomato plants, six hills of pole beans (climbing on laths), eight heads of lettuce and a solitary cucumber plant a war garden is in the same class as the man who owns a flivver and calls it a car.

Happily Disappointed

Paying his fare on the first lap of a trip that always costs 12 cents, one Bay State road patron was asked by the conductor how far he was going, and if he wanted a transfer. "Better take it," said the conductor. "I don't know if it is any good, but you can try." Sure enough it worked and the next fare was only two cents. One example of how the new zone system made a Brrrrrrrr! 4 o'clock Sunday a.m. Friend number 1 gets up and dresses with heavy eyelids. He eats a hurried breakfast of doughnuts and coffee and grabs his fishing apparatus, consisting of one pole and two different hooks. He hurries out of his fast asleep home to meet angler number 2. They were to meet on the corner. Friend number 1 waits, number 2 hasn't showed up yet. Friend number 1 waits and waits, looking at watch every half minute. An hour later friend number 2 shows up. Looks as though he got up just five minutes before. Makes excuse of being late on account of looking for tackle. The minutes must have put it some place or thrown it away but he did scrape up a pole and hook. Who's got the bait? Why I thought you were to get it. Why no! I figured you were to get it some place. They get going. You know the rest. Two tired rednecked rascals come straggling home Sunday night, the folks go to the movie. No fish. Great fishing trip.

Solstice

(Copyright, 1918, N. E. A.)
This is the Solstice of the World and all the eyes of long dead nations stare at it. Time's task is ours. If we should fail or fall, into the black abyss we stumble thunderous.

The slaves of vanished races clank their chains; Earth's restless rebels smiling through their pains of centuries of suffering dissent; Mute martyrs of all faiths which Time has blent upon the carrion of a lie; All the submerged, the beaten and the dumb Leap back to the momentary life to come With streaming eyes to beg us not to pause Till we have scotched this dragon, till his claws Hang loose, his fangs uprooted and his breath, Breathed backward, scorched his hideous soul to death.

The Solstice of the World and of The Race! The future ages, whereunto we turn, Look with their unborn eyes, which dimly burn Through the long corridors of endless space And fling the unyielding question in our face: "What of our destiny, if you should falter?" What if you halt he times, if you should pause? And in mistaken mercy leave this Beast One of his privileged, praying heads to feast Upon our vitals? Smile! and sear the necks! Let he return again and still again Our coming generations, "Farewell!" and "Hail!" The Past and Future cry to us, "As this devil in his ditch and tear him tooth and nail!" By all the hosts who died without avail! By all the unborn knocking at the pale! By all our living souls; we dare not fail.

Holland Plans to Turn Over
50,000 Tons of Potatoes
to the Germans

America May Retaliate and
Cut Off Supplies if the Report is True

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Official announcement from The Hague that the Netherlands government has agreed to export potatoes from the new crop in equal quantities to the belligerent nations, brought the disclosure yesterday of the fact that the United States government has information of Holland's intention to export 50,000 tons of potatoes to Germany.

Officials believe that in expressing a willingness to export potatoes to each of the belligerents, Holland is undertaking to disguise her intention of supplying large quantities of much-needed food to Germany alone.

Potatoes on Way to Germany.
Shipments to Germany already are under way, according to cable advices, the movement following closely on the announcement in Germany of the reduction of the potato ration from seven to three pounds weekly.

To supply Germany anything like 50,000 tons of potatoes, Holland, it was said yesterday, not only would be violating an agreement with Great Britain to supply that country and Germany each with 5000 tons of potatoes yearly, but also probably would imperil her food agreement with the United States.

Under that agreement America promised the Netherlands government grain in large quantities, and since much of it already has been shipped, some officials were of the opinion that the government, while disinclined to deprive Holland of further food supplies, might, in the face of public opinion in this country have to take drastic retaliatory action against Holland if she insists on allowing Germany 50,000 tons of potatoes at a time when the central powers are believed to be experiencing a food crisis.

Washington Surprised.
Holland's willingness to give Germany this great amount of food caused surprise among officials, in view of recent famine in that country, which was narrowly averted by prompt action of the American government in shipping grain and other foodstuffs.

Word is reaching Washington that already protests are being heard in Holland against the potato exportation on the ground that famine may be expected there next winter.

NEW YORK TO PARIS
IN FIVE DAYS

PARIS, July 2.—A naval base on the French coast used by the Americans in their transport traffic is destined after the war to become the European marine terminus of a five-day New York-to-Paris route, according to American naval officers, as their views are reported by Raymond Lestonnat in L'Illustration.

"It is the port of Europe, how is it you have not found that out for yourselves?" the writer records the Americans as saying. "The new liners which we will build after the war and which will put Paris within five days of New York, will use it. We shall build a new railroad to Paris and everybody will come this way from continent to continent."

WAR RELIEFS WANTED
A very interesting feature of the Fourth of July celebration on the South coast will be the exhibition of war relics to be given in the huts of the Knights of Columbus, Y.M.C.A. and the Red Cross. The public is asked to lend any war relics, either of the present war or of past wars, they may have in their possession. The proceeds of the exhibition will go to the three organizations.

Any person who wishes to loan such relics from Wednesday noon to Thursday night should leave them at the headquarters of any of the three organizations or at war work headquarters, 119 Merrimack st.

A proper guard will be placed over the exhibits while on display.

WOUNDED IN ACTION
Private William Dube, Battery D, 12th Field Artillery, was wounded in action in France, according to a telegram received here late yesterday. Private Dube is a Lowell boy, but his parents are not living. He enlisted on June 6 of last year and went to France in January. In a recent letter to a friend he said that he was in the best of health. His sister is with a telephone unit "over there."

COAL IS COMING

Storrow Confident Conditions
Will Be Better Than Those of Last Winter

State Promised Over a Million Tons More by Federal Officers

BOSTON, July 2.—A detailed statement concerning the outlook for coal this winter was made by Councillor James J. Storrow, fuel administrator for New England, at the meeting of the city council yesterday. In declaring that the proposal of a committee of the council to establish a municipal coal pocket was not feasible because no coal supply could be diverted from the amount that will be allotted to Massachusetts, Mr. Storrow expressed confidence that general conditions this year would be better than those of last winter.

He said that Massachusetts had been promised by the federal authorities an increase of 12 per cent in the anthracite delivery as compared with last year. This would mean, Mr. Storrow stated, about 1,000,000 tons increase.

"There is no such thing as the municipality going out and using $100,000 or $1,000,000 and increasing the amount of coal that can be brought into Boston," said Mr. Storrow. "Every ton of coal that is coming in between now and the first of next April has been allotted; so much to this city or town and so much to that. Coal will move in this state on that schedule."

"I think, too, we have a right not to expect such a winter as we had last year. We have restricted deliveries to people taking more than six tons. We hope that people are going to be more economical, that the winter is going to be an average winter, and we have 12 per cent more coal. With those three factors, we hope that conditions here next winter will be very materially improved as compared with last winter."

GLADDEN DEAD

Nationally Known Congregational Minister and Author
Died Today

Wrote Many Books, Including His "Recollections"—
Sketch of His Career

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 2.—Rev. Dr. Washington Gladden, nationally known Congregational minister and author, died today after a second stroke of paralysis, suffered last Sunday. He was 82 years old.

Distinguished in the religious world, Dr. Washington Gladden also was widely known as a magazine editor and writer, and the author of numerous books, included among which is his "Recollections."

While working as a printer on The Gazette at Oswego, N. Y., Dr. Gladden first began the practice of writing. While he was pastor of the Congregational church at North Adams, Mass., where he had been called in 1866, he began to contribute to The Independent and other magazines, and wrote his first book, "Plain Thoughts on the Art of Living." Later Dr. Gladden became identified with leading magazines and at the close of duties as pastor at North Adams in 1871, he joined the staff of The Independent, serving as editor of the publication for four years.

At the close of 1874 Dr. Gladden resigned his editorship and went to Springfield, Mass., as pastor of the North Congregational church. Eight years later he became pastor of the First Congregational church of Columbus, O. He continued pastor of the Columbus church for 21 years, relinquishing official duty at the close of 1913 and continuing thereafter as pastor emeritus.

From Sunday to Sunday during his active pastorate in the Ohio capital, he labored to disengage Christianity from what he believed to be its hampering dogmas, to vitalize it and make application of it to the problems of the individual, the city, the state and the nation.

He had no sooner begun his pastorate than the antagonism of labor and capital was forced on his attention by a strike in the Hooking Valley coal mines. Though prominent members of his church were among the employers, he spoke out freely, his pulpit and in private conferences, setting up ethical standards that were new to many. Here too, he preached sermons which were subsequently gathered into a book called "Who Wrote the Bible?" in which he maintained it was written by men without unusual inspiration, which assertion became the object of no few attacks throughout the country.

It was during this active part of his life also that he made his famous reference to "tainted money," the occasion being consideration of a gift by John D. Rockefeller. At a national Congregational meeting, he severely attacked gifts to Christian work, and his references became known country-wide.

His activity in bringing church life closer to every day problems was well illustrated in his personal work in Columbus. He was in the forefront of the fight for municipal reform and in 1900-1902, he served as a member of the Columbus city council. He greatly helped to frame new trolley franchises, improve the water supply and organize citizens for the election of better officials.

Dr. Gladden for many years manifested deep interest in educational work and before leading colleges and universities, both of the United States and England.

Various honors directly connected with his Christian ministry came to Dr. Gladden. In 1891 he was a delegate to the International congress of Congregationalists in London, and for three years was president of the Congregational church of America—the highest honor in that denomination in the United States.

Few of his manifestations of political interest attracted more attention than his friendship for Theodore Roosevelt which began when the latter was police commissioner of New York City. Through the instrumentality of Colonel Roosevelt, Dr. Gladden was able to assist in the settlement of the great anthracite coal strike in 1902.

Dr. Gladden was born at Pottsgrove, Pa., Feb. 11, 1836, the son of Solomon Gladden and Amanda Daniels. Until he was fifteen he lived in a farm near Oswego, N. Y. When he was 16 his uncle got him the place of printer's apprentice in the office of the Oswego Gazette. In 1855 he entered Oswego academy to prepare for the ministry. Thence in September, 1856 he went to Williams college, graduating in 1859. He had been a schoolmate in Oswego Academy.

GERMANS ENRAGED OVER
ALLIED AIR RAIDS

GENEVA, Switzerland, July 2.—South German newspapers, in order to reassure the nervous and angered populations of towns along the Rhine, attempt to explain away as unimportant the aerial bombardment of Mannheim Saturday morning.

It was really the most terrible raid on a German town during the war. The Germans officially announce that five were killed and 14 wounded, but the figures could be quadrupled. Several victims were, unfortunately, prisoners. Allied officers, who, disdainful shelter, cheered the allied aviators as they flew near the town. The residents of Mannheim were chagrined in witnessing five or six German machines running away from the British. Three of the former were brought down in flames near the town. The Badische anilins and soda factory, upon which bombs fell, blazed for many hours.

One of the largest banks was wrecked, its office furniture being blown into the principal street of the city. The population, already nervous before the raid, is now panic-stricken.

The raid on Karlsruhe, according to German reports, caused only material damage.

The exodus from Rhine towns continues and house rents have depreciated 35 per cent.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Furnishing of liquor to officers and men of the army within private homes is prohibited under new regulations formulated by President Wilson and Secretary Baker and made public last night by the commission on training camp activities.

Dry zones around every camp where as many as 250 men are stationed for more than 30 days also are established.

BREAK RECORD
Americans Equipped Hospital
in Three Days

PARIS, July 2.—What is believed to be a record for the speedy preparation of evacuation hospitals close behind the battle front was made by the American Red Cross along the line north-east of Paris a few days ago. The last German offensive was launched. These hospitals were established within a very short time by the officers in charge, whose work has received many flattering compliments.

In the case of one hospital, the officer in charge left Paris with ten nurses and 10 tons of equipment without knowing exactly where the hospital was to be located. He found a desirable building, rented it on the spot and had the place fully equipped, including an operating and X-ray room, within three days.

The second hospital had a few beds and a little equipment when the Red Cross officers arrived. Its capacity was increased to 600 beds by means of equipment rushed from Paris by motor trucks. The trucks, with bedding and hospital equipment, reached the hospital simultaneously with the wounded from the battlefield.

The third hospital is in a sector where American troops are brigaded with the British. The first two are behind the Franco-American front. Groups of nurses, equipped with gas masks and ready to leave for the front, are a common sight in Paris.

The government has placed a ban on the use of nitric acid, bichromates, chlorates, nitrates of all grades and strengths, mixed acids, perborates and perchlorates, permanganates, peroxides and phosphorus, and all who have any of the listed ingredients in quantities of one ounce or more in their possession, are affected under this law, while included in this list are also fireworks except those sold in ten cent packages, flashlight powder, all kinds of smokeless powder, and dynamite. Miss Clara E. Holland, formerly of the Lowell Guild, was in Lowell a short time yesterday en route to the office of the surgeon general at Washington. Miss Holland has been stationed at Fort Ontario, Oswego, N. Y.

Harold J. O'Brien, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. O'Brien, of 90 Parkview avenue, a graduate of the Lowell high school, class '16, has enlisted as a second class seaman in the naval reserve and he expects to be called to the colors about July 23.

Those who enjoy an occasional dip in the Merrimack river will be pleased to learn that two bathing houses are to be set up on the banks of the river off Vermont avenue, to be used as dressing places. One will be in readiness by Thursday, July 4.

Mrs. Libby Beckett, saleslady at the Boston Outlets store in Merrimack street for several years, terminated her services there Saturday night. Her associates, not wishing to lose one of their number without some recognition of the good fellowship that has existed, presented her a garnet ring set in pearls.

Harold J. Patten of Tewksbury, for the past nine months stationed at the state house, Boston, as chief of ordinance, has been commissioned a second lieutenant in the United States Guards and reported today to Fort Ethan Allen, Vt. He took the final examinations about 10 days ago. Lt. Patten had been rifle instructor in the national guard for the past 12 years.

Continued
No in that particular section. The time varies from "as soon as possible" to 20 minutes.
Windsor and Chester streets, running from Westford to Princeton, are made one-way thoroughfares. The mayor explained that these streets are already one-way streets in practice, but there is no ordinance in effect to back up the police in the enforcement of the rule.

Present regulations which conflict with the new order of things are repealed.
The meeting was called at 10:07, with all members present. A petition of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. for the re-location of a pole in Central street, near North, was set for a hearing on July 9. John N. Gallego petitioned for a concrete sidewalk at 30 Hudson street, and the matter was referred to Commissioner Morse. A petition for a gas light in Burns street was likewise referred to Mr. Morse.

The petition of William H. Saunders for a garage and the right to keep gasoline at 139 Methuen street, and that of Charles E. Cook for permission to erect a garage, were assigned for hearings on July 23.
The petition of the U. S. Cartridge Co. to load and haul powder was read and a hearing set for July 23.

A favorable report from Commissioner Morse on the petition of Richard B. Walsh, that a portion of Lang street be laid out and accepted was read, and also a recommendation from the city engineer that the work be done. The report was accepted and the order to have the portion of the street in question laid out and accepted was adopted.

Commissioner Morse asked permission for the changing and re-establishing of a portion of the westerly sidewalk on Hildreth street, and the petition will remain in the city clerk's office for seven days before action is taken.

Duncan Appointed Constable
Alexander Duncan was appointed constable and Mayor Thompson explained that it was often of convenience to have a member of the city solicitor's office force a constable.

Permission was granted the Lowell Electric Light Corp. to erect poles on Bowers street, between Arlington and Mt. Vernon streets, and also to erect and maintain poles on Dracut street, between Fourth and Sixth avenues.

Fire Escape Bids
It was voted to award the contract for the erection of fire escapes on the Greenhage school to Boutwell Bros. Bids were opened yesterday and that of Boutwell Bros. was the lowest received, $1680.

The council voted to award to Amos Kendall of 12 Washington street the sum of $30 for damage done to property as a result of the sewer in that section backing up. The award was made upon recommendation of the city solicitor.

The following were given leave to withdraw: Personal injury claims, Elizabeth Wynne, Ida L. Shaw, Della Higgins; damage to automobile, Arthur Souder, James Gove; damage to personal property, Frederick A. Taylor.

Homestead Road
Henry Stirling, secretary of the homestead commission, spoke at length in favor of the granting of the petition of Charles F. Gettemy, chairman of the homestead commission, and himself as secretary of the commission, that Homestead road be accepted, macadamized and sidewalks laid on both sides, including a circle; also on Hildreth street, in front of Lots 2 and 13, and that a grass plot be put in the center of the circle in Homestead road. Mr. Stirling explained that it was the purpose of the commission to have that section maintained as suburban appearance as possible and that is why the grass plot had been asked.

Commissioner Morse said that it would be too costly to put an edge-stone around such a plot and that owing to the size of it, the edge-stone would give it a very belabored appearance. He maintained, also, that it would be a waste of time to put in a grass plot unless there were stone around it.

Lieut. Harris Retired
Lieut. Henry F. Harris, a member of the fire department, petitioned to be placed on the pension list as being permanently disabled. The city physician certified that in his judgment Lieut. Harris was unfit for active service. It was voted that he be retired and placed on the pension list. Lieut. Harris has been a member of the fire department since 1888.

New Traffic Ordinance
Mayor Thompson then read the following traffic ordinance for the regulation of traffic in the downtown sections of the city and it was passed to be enrolled and ordained:

Section 7. That Chester street, from its intersection with Westford street to its intersection with Princeton street, shall be a one-way street for vehicular traffic. Vehicles on Chester street between said intersections shall travel in a northerly direction on said street from the intersection of Westford street to the intersection of Princeton street.

ITALIAN VICTORY

Czecho-Slovak Troops Distinguished Themselves in Aiding Italians

Among Austrians Captured by Czechs was Brother of One of Victorious Company

ITALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Monday, July 1. (By the Associated Press).—Czecho-Slovak troops distinguished themselves in the capture of Monte di Valbella by the Italians. Among the number of Austrian prisoners captured by a company of Czechs was a brother of one of the men in the victorious company. A joyful reunion took place.

One of the questions asked of his newly found brother by the prisoner was: "Whose offensive is this? The Italians seem to be doing all the fighting."

The local actions resulting in the reconquest of Monte di Valbella, Col. Del Rosso and Col. di Chelo had for their objects the widening of the Italian front west of the Brenta and the driving of the enemy from the positions he captured last Christmas.

lost to the Italians in January and regained on June 15. The Italian losses were slight compared to those sustained by the Austrians. This was due entirely to the violence and accuracy of the Italian and killed artillery fire. Under cover of this fire, the infantry was able to take the enemy positions without much opposition and to dig in at once. The Austrian artillery return fire has been severe, some shells reaching the plains behind the lines and destroying houses centuries old. Three 150 years old on Monte Melega have been torn up. The attack on Col del Rosso began Sunday morning shortly after dawn. The Italians took the height from the Third Edelweis division which formerly fought under Emperor Charles. The division suffered severely. Italian airplanes showered it with bombs while the Bersaglieri exacted a heavy toll in hand-to-hand fighting. Many of the Bersaglieri wore their red sash caps during the battle.

RESTRICT OCEAN TRAVEL

Revised Rules for Passengers from U. S. for Foreign Ports Effective

NEW YORK, July 2.—Ocean travel during the war was further discouraged today when revised rules for passengers from the United States for foreign ports became effective. Hereafter prospective passengers must give three days' notice to the customs intelligence bureau of their intention to leave the country. Male applicants for passports who are liable to be drafted, must exhibit permits from local draft boards. The new rules also are more stringent as regards baggage, and persons wishing to send baggage telegrams or messages to passengers are warned that such messages must reach the pier prior to sailing time.

Money deposited this week in The Lowell Five Cent Savings Bank begins to draw interest Saturday, July 6th.

FOURTH LIBERTY LOAN

Liberty Bonds Being Turned Out by Thousands at Government Engraving Plant

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Fourth Liberty Loan bonds now are being turned out by the thousands at the government's engraving plant, in preparation for the fourth loan campaign in October. They are identical in form and design as those of the third loan, but space has been left on each bond for later inserting of exact terms.

Three shifts of workmen, including many women and girls, are employed by the bureau of printing and engraving, and James R. Wilmett, the director, has promised to furnish a full supply of bonds by the time the fourth campaign opens.

The treasury is trying to devise a scheme of simplifying the registration of bonds by the attachment of coupons on which the purchaser may record necessary information to be mailed to the treasury. No plan has yet been adopted.

GIRAGOSSIAN WANTS TO

"SHOW" CONGRESS

BOSTON, July 2.—Garabed T. K. Giragossian, 120 Sutherland road, Brookline, inventor of "Garabed," which he claims produces unlimited energy without toil or expense, except for wear and tear of machinery, is not in the least discouraged because the group of scientists, who witnessed his demonstration on Commonwealth ave. Saturday, yesterday reported to the interior department that they do not believe its principles are sound, that his devices operate, or that they can result in the practical development or utilization of free energy.

Two of the five men who tested "Garabed," under an act of congress, were James Ambrose Moyer, director of the University Extension division of the state board of education, a graduate of the Lawrence Scientific school at Harvard, and Charles Ladd Norton, professor of heats and measurements at Tech.

Decision Reached Quickly
After going over the "Garabed" lay-out, it evidently did not take them long to come to a conclusion, because their adverse report was written and signed the day of the inspection.

Giragossian feels that the statement they issued does not correctly represent the situation, as he started for Washington last night with the intention of having another demonstration, this time before congress if possible. He says that inventors are always discredited at first, and that he did not expect he would be able to get a favorable report by just one effort.

"While I am not anxious to engage in a controversy with the committee," said he, last night, "I believe that I will prove that 'Garabed' will do everything that has been claimed. There will be no room for argument before I am through. The invention will speak for itself and the scoffing tongues will be still."

Offers Public Demonstration
"If there is no other way to prove to the world that my invention is what I say it is, I shall give a free demonstration on Boston common."

"The source of energy is already existent, and I am going to utilize it by means I have discovered. The principle is so extremely simple that the minute one sees it he wonders why he did not think of it before."

Moyer and Norton, the local members of the committee, from whom "Garabed" has received its official setback, say there is nothing more that can be said upon the matter than what is contained in their report.

Brilliant Victory for American Troops Would Turn Strike Over to War Labor Board

Lowell Mill Treasurers Send a Telegram to Washington

Mills Unwilling to Accept Responsibility of Delay in Government Orders—No Change in the Strike Situation—Investigators Sent Here by State Board of Arbitration—Quiet Picketing at the Mills Today

The following telegram, which is self-explanatory, was sent to Washington today by the Lowell Mill Treasurers' association:

The refusal of a demand for an advance in wages in the textile mills of Lowell having resulted in a strike of the operatives and as we are unwilling to accept the responsibility of delay on government contracts, we suggest if it is possible to obtain the services of the national war labor board to leave this and other disputes that may arise to said board for settlement for the duration of the war or so long as our mills are on important government work.

Government Investigators

Two government investigators arrived in Lowell this noon, to confer with mill and labor union officials in an endeavor to bring about a settlement in the textile strike, which went into effect in the local cotton mills yesterday. The arbitrators are Harry J. Skeffington, U. S. commissioner of immigration for the port of Boston, and J. Morgan Mullen, of the state board of arbitration. The investigators were sent here by the state board of arbitration and shortly after their arrival they conferred with President John Golden of the United Textile Workers of America, and later they arranged for a conference with the mill officials.

The various organizations involved in the strike held meetings this morning and later reported to the strike committee. The reports, so stated

THREE POUNDS OF SUGAR FOR EACH PERSON

Despite the wide-spread publicity that has been given the rule that not more than three pounds of sugar per month for each person will be allowed by the government, nevertheless, there are a number of Lowell people who persist in demanding more than their rightful share. Warren P. Riordan, of the local food administration, urges housekeepers to keep in mind the government ruling that the limit on the "sweet stuff" is three pounds per capita in any one month.

The question of canning and preserving naturally arises and this phase of the situation is provided for by special permission cards which may be obtained at Mr. Riordan's office in city hall. But as far as the "straight" use of sugar is concerned, three pounds is all that is coming to anybody.

THE PLAN B CHARTER MAY GO ON BALLOT

It was stated this afternoon that a movement is on foot to have Plan B charter placed on the ballot this fall instead of Plan C.

It will be remembered that when the agitation for a change in charter first started papers were distributed and signed by voters favoring Plan B. A big list of names was filed with the city clerk and it was later announced that the number of names was insufficient. A supplementary list was turned in, but was ruled out of order, so to speak.

The ink had hardly dried on Plan B papers, when Plan C papers were circulated. Later on the city clerk reported favorably on the names on the Plan B papers and the city council voted that the supplementary names filed for Plan B charter should have been recognized by the city clerk and city council.

YANKS SURPRISE HUNS AND PENETRATE LINES

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Another quiet day along the American front was reported by General Pershing today, in a communique for yesterday, sent before the successful operations last night west of Chateau-Thierry, described in press despatches. An American aviator shot down an enemy machine in the Toul region.

Capture of 33 prisoners, including one officer within the space of 20 minutes in the Picardy sector, in the region of Chateau Jenlis, on June 30, at 3 a. m., was mentioned. The American party penetrated the German lines and took the enemy completely by surprise.

The communique follows: "Section A—The day has passed quietly at points occupied by our troops.

"Yesterday, one of our aviators shot down a hostile machine in the Toul region.

"Section B—In Picardy, between noon June 27 and noon June 28, the enemy showed little aggressiveness. His artillery fire was much lighter even than that of the day before. It was directed largely against the region of Grivesnes. The activity of his airplanes showed the same decrease as regards reconnaissance work, coupled with a marked increase in bombing operations. Hostile patrols attempted more than once to reach our lines, but either retired without establishing contact or were driven off by rifle fire. Our own artillery operated very effectively on the German front lines and also in the German rear, where one of his ammunition dumps exploded at 9 o'clock in the evening. One of his balloons was brought down in flames by an allied airplane.

Council Passes New Ordinance Regulating Motor Vehicle Traffic Downtown

Lieut. Harris of the Fire Department is Placed on the Pension List

A new ordinance regulating motor vehicle traffic in the downtown section of the city was passed to be enrolled and ordained at this morning's regular meeting of the municipal council and will be operative within 10 days. The ordinance was introduced by Mayor Perry D. Thompson. Mayor Thompson stated that the present traffic regulations were not satisfactory and that in some instances the police had no power to enforce traffic rules. The salient features of the new regulations are that no motor vehicle operated in the streets of the city shall exceed 15 miles an hour in any part of the city which is thickly settled. Areas where vehicles may stand only for loading or unloading passengers are defined and apply to the downtown section. The amount of time that vehicles may stand in one place is regulated according to the density of traffic.

CARPENTERS STRIKE ON COAL POCKET JOB

Eighteen carpenters employed by the New England Concrete and Construction Co. of Boston on the erection of a coal pocket for the Appleton Co. of this city went on strike this morning after refusing to handle material alleged to have been purchased from a non-union company. The New England Concrete and Construction Co. is erecting the pocket, but it has nothing to do with the purchase of materials, for it is doing the work on a commission basis, the Appleton Co. supplying its own materials. The carpenters who went out on strike were receiving union wages and some of them, so it is claimed, were being paid more than the union schedule.

MANCHESTER STRIKERS TO HOLD MASS MEETING

MANCHESTER, N. H., July 2.—A mass meeting will be held of the strikers of the Amoskeag and Stark mills, tomorrow, when a proposal that they return to work pending the arbitration of the strike, made by Labor Commissioner John S. B. Davis, will be placed before the strikers for settlement.

The proposal was made at a conference this morning between the strike leaders and the agents of the Amoskeag and Stark mills.

Mr. Davis appealed to the patriotism of the workers who, he stated were depriving the government of about 1,500,000 yards of much needed cloth each week they are idle.

He declared that if the facts warranted an increase of 15 per cent. in wages, for which the operatives are striking the award would be retroactive, and the increase be granted from June 17.

"The mill agents had already made an offer to submit the controversy to arbitration.

The strike leaders declined to settle the matter themselves, but will place it before the mass meeting of the strikers tomorrow morning. About 18,000 operatives are idle through the strike and they will attend the meeting in the largest hall which can be procured.

Pershing's Men Capture Vaux and 275 Germans

Americans Surprised Huns Near Chateau-Thierry and Gained Important Ground—Effective Assistance to American Artillery by French—Allies' Position Greatly Improved—British Repulse German Attacks

The allied line has been moved forward in the important sector northwest of Chateau-Thierry, where the Germans in their late spring rush between the Aisne and the Marne made their nearest approach to Paris.

Success For Americans

American troops figured conspicuously in this operation carried out last night in conjunction with the French. They captured the village of Vaux, two miles west of Chateau-Thierry, and the heights lying to the west-northwest of the captured hamlet. Some unimportant wooded land also was secured and held obtained on new sections of the main highway leading from Chateau-Thierry to Paris.

Americans Capture 275 Huns

In overrunning this ground the American forces took 275 Germans prisoner, including five officers, together with numerous machine guns and quantities of material. The French took a score or more of prisoners.

bringing the total up to more than 300.

Effective Assistance By French

Effective assistance to the American infantry in their forward dash was evidently given by the French artillery, which is posted on hill 204, about midway between Vaux and Chateau-Thierry.

From this eminence, which forms the bastion of the defense near the apex of the Germans' Marne salient,

Captured Germans Say that Americans Swept Everything Before Them

Details of Brilliant Dash by Yankees in Taking Vaux and Hun Prisoners

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES ON THE MARNE FRONT, July 2.—(By the Associated Press)—In a brilliant operation, after hard fighting, American troops on this front last night captured the village of Vaux, together with a large slice of the Paris terrace highway west of Chateau-Thierry, and two patches of wooded land.

The Americans took 275 Germans prisoner, including five officers, and captured a quantity of machine guns and other equipment. In the Vaux region, the Americans took the Germans completely by surprise. Most of the prisoners were taken out of cellars and dugouts. How many Germans were killed, of course, is unknown, but from the number of dead in plain view at various places, the total must have been considerable.

While artillery preparation was going the observation balloons while high over head. Some were protecting the observation balloons while others were combating the skies to keep off enemy machines.

Many Air Battles

Early this morning the American pilots again appeared for similar duty and were soon contesting with the enemy for supremacy of the air. A number of air battles were observed, but reports on the results are not yet available.

It was exactly 6 o'clock last evening when the Americans went over the top under the protection of a hail of bullets from our machine gun batteries. The infantry action was preceded by a short but terrific artillery preparation. When the Germans saw that a formidable attack was developing many of them in desperate flight and ran toward the rear to nests from which a hot fire began pouring.

Duel in Front of Vaux

The Americans paused for a moment while the automatic rifles and machine guns with the advancing troops fought a duel in front of Vaux briefly, but effectively, with the enemy. Then the Americans whose number was considerable, went on, most of them running in their eagerness to get at close quarters with the Germans. At the same time the Boche began hurling gas shells into the rear of the American lines.

Within a brief time the Americans wrested from the enemy the Boise de la Roche and the woods adjoining it. Then came word that they were in Vaux and, finally, after sharp fighting, there in the streets and houses, they overcame all resistance and swept on beyond the village.

Huns Under Fire For Several Miles

They reached every one of their objectives and by this operation have eliminated a salient and have straightened out their line. Over an area of several miles the Americans now have the enemy under their guns. Daylight this morning saw the Americans dig out in almost undisturbed far beyond the old German defense line. To the rear hatches of prisoners and piles of material were going. The number of prisoners has steadily mounted until it has reached

CABINET OFFICERS URGE SEIZURE OF TEL. LINES

WASHINGTON, July 2.—While three cabinet officers were before the commerce committee today advocating the seizure of telegraph, telephone, cable and radio systems, the house took jurisdiction over the measure from that committee and vested it in the military committee.

There was no discussion and only a viva voce vote when Representative Gordon of Ohio moved that jurisdiction be transferred because the measure was urged as a military necessity.

Members of the military committee said later they were not opposed to the resolution and undoubtedly would report it favorably.

275. The fighting qualities of the Americans were certified to by virtually all the prisoners taken. They said the Americans fought like wild men, sweeping everything before them as they plunged over the ground.

So fierce was the attack that many Germans who were in the zone assaulted made their escape by running when the fight got too hot for them and they saw it was impossible either to stand down or halt the American plunge.

No evidence of submarine activities near the shores of America has been reported since the steamer Henrik Lund was sunk 120 miles east of Cape Hatteras on June 10.

Advices to the navy about the Chiller were brief and did not say how many, if any of the ships' company were missing.

The following statement was issued: "The navy department is informed that the Belgian steamship Chiller was sunk by a submarine near the British transatlantic route on June 21, the navy department announced. Twenty-five survivors were picked up by a sailing vessel on June 27. First information was received last night. The Chiller was a ship of 2500 gross tons."

The Chiller was sent down in mid-ocean three days after the British transatlantic route was torpedoed 700 miles from the American coast. It is thought probable here that both vessels were victims of a German submarine or submarines returning to base after raiding off the United States.

EX-GERMAN WINS THE S. A. R. MARKSMANSHIP PRIZE AT DEVENS

CAMP DEVENS, July 2.—1st Serg. Charles Schnabel, German born and a German subject until he was naturalized here last week, won the Sons of American Revolution individual prize for rifle marksmanship. It was announced yesterday afternoon by Maj. George B. Carpenter, division ordnance officer.

Today he received a gold wrist watch and a silver identification tag as the prize. He made 87.43 per cent. in 140 rounds. First Serg. Schnabel left Germany several years ago, sailed the seas, did some hunting in the south and came here last September 5. He calls New York city his home.

"You may get a chance to use your marksmanship against your former friends," it was suggested to him. His reply was: "And I can lay 'em down cold, you bet." He has been the "topper" in Co. C, 304th Infantry, since fall, and they say that as a disciplinarian he's a wonder.

Co. E of the Boston regiment, composed mostly of Cambridge men, won the company prize among all the organizations competing. This was formerly Capt. H. H. Flower's company, and is now commanded by 1st Lieut. William H. Mason. B Company of the 304th Infantry was second and C Company of the 302d was third.

Vernon Ashley Field, president of the Massachusetts society, S.A.R., wrote Maj. Gen. Hodges that the organization wished to present the prize "in memory of the accurate rifle fire on their forefathers at Lexington and Bunker Hill, and believing that nothing is more essential for the safety of the soldier defensively or for his success offensively than to know how to shoot and shoot straight."

List of Sharpshooters

The highest scores in each organization participating were made by the following:

301st Infantry—1st Battalion, Private I. C. Baird of Brighton, B Company; 2d Battalion, Corp. H. W. Bunker of Boston, G Company; 3d Battalion, Private Raffaele Guldotta of Bristol, R. L. A Company.

302d Infantry—1st Battalion, Corp. Reuben Wood of Fall River, B Company; 2d Battalion, Private Arthur F. O'Neill of Holbrook, G Company; 3d Battalion, John Connors.

303d Infantry—1st Battalion, Corp. John F. Canner, B Company; 2d Battalion, 1st Class Private Seth W. Bull, F Company; 3d Battalion, Corp. Bert R. Middleton, L Company.

304th Infantry—1st Battalion, 1st Serg. Charles Schnabel, C Company; 2d Battalion, Serg. Russell F. Walker of Waterbury, E Company; 3d Battalion, Serg. William Rowe of Greenwich, Conn., K Company.

301st Engineers, Serg. Joseph E. Thomey, Central Falls, R. I.; 301st Ammunition Train, Private Harry P. Pong of Fisherville, G Company; 301st Trench Mortar Battery, Private David Brough; Military Police, Corp. Benjamin F. Parsons; 602d Engineers, Private L. M. Anderson.

Another honor went to the 304th Infantry yesterday, in winning the Capt. J. E. L. Warren cup for the crack trench mortar platoon honors. This platoon, commanded by Lieut. Thomas J. Mahoney of Portland, contested with the 303d Infantry platoon, commanded by Lieut. Cornelius Lawrence of Taunton, and it was a tossup, or as Capt. Warren put it: "There's not a two-penny cuss between them; they're both about as neat a lot as you could find in an army." The cup went to the 304th on its season's record.

First Lieut. Rector Tremblay of Greenfield, who has been assisting Capt. Warren with the trench mortars, was yesterday assigned to the 304th.

Capt. Hall Back in Ayer

work with the intelligence department at Washington about two months ago, returned yesterday to the division intelligence office and received congratulations. He will remain in intelligence work here. Capt. Hall was a Harvard '07 graduate.

Second Lieut. John C. MacDonald of Greenfield, a Norwich university star, of the Headquarters Troop, was yesterday made a first lieutenant. And two band leaders, both musicians of note before being drafted, were made second lieutenants yesterday. Harrison Kellar of Chestnut Hill, Newton, violinist, 301st Field Artillery, and Robert Gibb of Dedham, 302d Infantry.

First Lieut. Miles Weeks was ordered to New York university to instruct.

Private Frank Cassidy of 139 North avenue, Burlington, Vt., who came into the army last Friday, died yesterday at the Base hospital, of blood poisoning due to an infected boil.

Ex-Serg. John L. Degnan, 301st Engineers, of Providence, was sentenced to three years at hard labor by general court-martial for being absent without leave from December 17 until May 24, when he surrendered himself in Providence.

Jiu jitsu lessons at the division schools started yesterday with the 301st Infantry. Other regiments will get their instruction later.

PRIV. A. LAJEUNESSE REPORTED MISSING

Private Arthur Lajeunesse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lajeunesse of 37 Trotting Park road, has been reported missing in France. His parents received this information in a telegram last evening from the war department. Private Lajeunesse is a member of the regular army. He enlisted in Co. M, 23d Infantry, about a year ago and went to France in September. He is 20 years of age.

THE YANKEES NOW ARE "ATTABOYS"

By Newspaper Enterprise Association LONDON, July 2.—Just when Londoners had become accustomed to calling the American soldiers "Yanks" they've learned a new appellation for them, which they declare is even more appropriate.

It's "Attaboys!"

American baseball fans will recognize its source immediately.

"Yanks" gained its popularity before the great American pastime was played so generally in England and in France.

When the English heard the Yankees cry "Attaboys!" as some player hit out a three-bagger, they immediately started an inquiry into the meaning of the term. One English paper described it thus:

"The term expresses the satisfaction of the spectator with some meritorious performance of a player. Literally it means 'That's the stuff, my boy!'"

All the London papers took it up, with the result that in London, at least, the Americans are now almost unanimously called "Attaboys."

CROWN PRINCE IS BEING IGNORED (By N.E.A.)

LONDON, July 2.—Emperor William is doing his utmost to put the crown prince into the foreground into the minds of his people, but he seems to be having a tough time of it.

The German war correspondents, says an Amsterdam despatch, are wilfully ignoring the prince's military merits. During the recent offensive on the Aisne and Marne, which the Kaiser tried hard to popularize as "the crown prince's battle," the Hun heir was deliberately slighted. All the credit for the gains made was given to the individual generals in command.

In the accounts of the Kaiser's visits to the front the correspondents do not mention his son's name.

Of course he's furious about it, but what can he do?

BRIG.-GEN. RUCKMAN TAKES OVER THE DUTIES OF PROVOST MARSHAL

BOSTON, July 2.—To enable him to carry out certain plans, Brig.-Gen. John W. Ruckman, commander of the department of the northeast, has taken over the duties of provost marshal. It was stated today at the department headquarters that the change would not be permanent. The provost guard is undergoing reorganization, and will ultimately be composed of details of United States guards.

INTERESTING LETTERS FROM LOWELL SOLDIERS IN THE WAR ZONE

Private John J. Kearns of Battery B, Fifth Field Artillery, in France, writes an interesting letter to his brother-in-law, David Bourgeois of Draught, who enlisted in the national service a year ago last May. This is the first news which Mr. Bourgeois received from him since last August:

France, May 25, 1918.

Dear Dave: Just a line, hoping they find all the family in good health. Tell your mother there is nothing to worry about, because American soldiers are as well protected here as we would be at home. We get good food and clean clothes whenever we need them.

They had mass in a church last Sunday near where we are stationed, well within the firing line. Can you hear it? Each village, no matter how many houses there are, has a good-sized church. You can see the steeples for miles around. I was in a church the other day that had been shot up. Everything was lying around, and though the occupants had been obliged to get out in a hurry. I have seen hundreds of villages with not a single house standing.

Massachusetts soldiers went through our street one day and I never knew it until they had gone. I haven't seen a single person that I know since I left Lowell. I have been here since Aug. 12 and don't want to be any place else until the finish. Give my best regards to everybody.

JOHN J. KEARNS.

Fourth of July celebration always going on very quickly dispels the dream. The towns around here are all intact, and the ravages of war have not, as yet, touched them. As the enemy did not penetrate the lines in this sector as in others. Another fellow and I are in charge of an automobile truck and bring up materials and supplies to the other engineers who are working near the trenches. It is very interesting and at the same time unhealthy if you should drop near us in transit. We do most of our trucking at night, and the roads are very dark, but that is the only favorable time as the German observation balloons are watching for us in the daytime.

I have visited a lot of towns in the different sectors and have met many Lowell boys which has afforded me a lot of pleasure. The company to which I am attached has considerable equipment. We have 27 wagons, 20 of which are classed as combat wagons, six as caissons, one water wagon (upon which we are all seated), 12 three-ton auto trucks, and one Dodge touring car, two motorcycles, 110 mules and four saddle horses. You can appreciate the work we have to do, but it is all in the life of the army, and one doesn't mind it after getting used to it.

I got a chance last week to go to a large town. Our motor truck needed overhauling, and we took it to the division garage for repairs. We then spent three days in this particular town. It is quite large and has a cathedral, big department stores and fine theatres. I had a good time while there, and I met a Lowell soldier who had been in Centralville. He is now a cook in the 30th Engineers. While at home he used to be in the potato business.

Well, I was rather reluctant to leave this town, but orders must be obeyed and as the French soldiers say, it is the war (cest la guerre).

There have been three good scraps since we arrived in this sector, and the boches have found the Americans too mean worthy of their steel. Things are quiet just now, and we are watching and waiting.

I forgot to tell you we spent two months on the Soissons sector and left a few days before the Germans started their big drive.

It is now 9.15 p. m. and is getting dusk. The longest days don't get dark until 10.15 o'clock. Wishing you all at home good luck, I remain, BILL.

William F. Kilbride, Engineer Train Co., 101st Engineer Regt.

ANIMAL ACT WITH THE ROBINSON SHOWS

Few who see wild animals in cages realize the vast amount of trouble, danger and expense necessary to get them there. The greatest dangers lie in capturing the wild animals in their native country. With the John Robinson shows, which will give two performances in Lowell, Thursday, July 11 there are several hundred wild animals, most of which were captured in the forest and jungles of their native country.

There is not more ticklish or dangerous task than trucking lions in the vast Kuban deserts. For capturing full-grown lions large traps of various forms are used. One trap is square, one of the sides lifting upon a spring-like the old fashioned mouse trap. This trap is baited with a piece of fresh meat, and as soon as the lion has entered the trap the door shuts down over his head. He is then securely tied to a tree and allowed to remain there until quiet. Tame elephants are then brought into use and appear to be sort of persuasive in making the huge animals tractable.

Tickets will be on sale show day at Liggett's drug store, 67 Merrimack street, at the same prices charged at the grounds.

EARLY MORNING FIRE

A slight blaze on the floor over the smokehouse of Swift & Dalley in Dutton street was responsible for the ringing of an alarm from box 121 at 2.20 o'clock this morning. The quick response of the firemen prevented the fire from spreading and the damage was slight.

220,000 Americans Bar Road
to Paris — Expect Big
Hun Attack There

Yankees to Take 150-Mile
Front—1,000,000 Americans "Over" by July 4

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Resumption of the German offensive on the west front is now expected momentarily by army officials here. Gen. Pershing's reports, as well as French and British advances from the front, have shown increasing enemy activity day by day, indicating that the Germans are preparing for another assault.

There is great stir and movement among the Germans before the American lines around Chateau-Thierry. Part of the drive may be directed against this front in a renewal of the thrust at Paris through the Compiègne gateway. If so, an army corps of American troops stands shoulder to shoulder with the French again to block the road.

Composed of Regulars

Secretary Baker disclosed yesterday that organization of the 1st Army Corps, under Maj. Gen. Hunter Liggett, probably had been completed, although he made no announcement.

"I suspect," the secretary said, in reply to a question, "that several of our divisions are operating together as an army corps under command of Gen. Liggett. Whether any other divisions have been created into an army corps and a tentative army corps commander chosen, I have not heard."

It was learned, also, that the First, Second and Third Divisions (regulars), commanded respectively by Maj. Gens. Robert L. Bullard, Omar Bundy and Joseph T. Dickman, are included in the first corps and all are either at Chateau-Thierry or at Cantigny.

Germany's Greatest Effort

The corps organization plan, however, calls for six divisions, four combatant and two replacement, and, with the necessary artillery units and other additional troops, the total strength of a corps would be nearly 220,000 men. Undoubtedly Gen. Liggett has all the elements necessary for his corps, if his organization is complete.

With this army corps in the theatre where great events are believed to be unfolding, the expected German thrust assumes new significance here. The opinion is general among officers that the blow now in preparation is to be the heaviest yet struck.

Unless they mistake the signs, the Germans are getting ready for the crucial moment in their great effort to reach victory by force before the full American fighting power can be brought to bear against them.

1,000,000 Yankees by July 4

The belief of Gen. March, chief of staff, that the allied situation is "extremely favorable" as expressed in a recently weighed statement last Saturday, is believed to be shared by the allied leaders. The speed with which American troops have been rushed to France probably has played a large part in the confidence both here and in the allied countries that this new thrust of the Germans will fail as have the last two.

There is every reason to believe that by the 4th of July more than 1,000,000 American troops will have sailed. An official announcement to that effect as a part of the Fourth of July celebration is to be expected.

The fact that five American divisions have completed training with the British and been rushed to Gen. Pershing's last March is another sign of the speed with which Gen. Foch is being supplied with fighting man power.

The recent stalling thrusts of the French and British at the enemy lines in Flanders and southwest of Compiègne, are regarded as showing the entire confidence of the allied leaders in the outcome, although weeks or months of better fighting may be in store.

Taking Over Front of 150 Miles

Sec. Baker had no advice yesterday to show that formation of the First Field army under Gen. Liggett had been entirely completed. Gen. Liggett is regarded as the logical organizer and commander for the First army, as he was Gen. Pershing's selection for commander of the First Corps. The rank of lieutenant general probably will go with the command.

Presumably Gen. Liggett's corps is regarded now as a part of Gen. Pershing's mobile force as distinct from troops in the army organization which is being built up to take over a definite American sector of the battle front.

The appearance of American troops at five points along the line between St. Mihiel and the Swiss border indicates that the whole stretch of 150 to 200 miles of the front is being rapidly becoming Americanized. The definitely placed American sector from the vicinity of St. Mihiel to the Moselle river is included and at present is the left flank of the whole sector, which the Americans seem destined to hold when they come fully into position on the right of the line.

If these indications are correct, the positions on both sides of Chateau-Thierry and near Montdidier, further north where the French and British lines join, are held by the American mobile units thrown into to meet the emergency created by the German offensive.

NO WARNING.

Sinking of Hospital Ships
a Deliberate Policy on
Part of Germans

British Mercy Ship with Sick and Wounded Tor-
pedoed—Many Lost

LONDON, July 2.—That the sinking of hospital ships is a deliberate policy on the part of the Germans now is placed beyond all doubt by the torpedoing of the British hospital ship Llandovery Castle, the newspapers say in their editorial comment today.

"In the presence of such unspeakable infamy deliberately repeated," says the Daily Chronicle, "it is a waste of breath to reiterate the abhorrence which everybody with a spark of civilized sense must feel. But we would invite the German people to ask themselves what is the use of their statesmen appealing, like Foreign Secretary von Kuehlmann, to be credited with 'probity and honor' while crimes so odious, dishonorable and unashamed continue to be carried out by the orders of their government."

The excuse for the attack on the Llandovery, continues the Daily Mail, was that it did not believe it himself when he said to the captain: "You are carrying eight American flight officers." If there had been a particle of truth in the charge, the newspaper adds, the submarine captain had only to stop the Llandovery Castle, seize the eight officers and take them to Germany, as proof of allied guilt in using hospital ships for transports.

Many Lives Lost

LONDON, July 2.—A German submarine 70 miles from the Irish coast, on the night of June 27, torpedoed the 11,000-ton hospital ship Llandovery Castle, which had been chartered by the Canadian government and had been carrying wounded and sick from England to Canada for many months past. The ship was then on her way to England. She had on board 258 persons, including 80 men of the Canadian Army Medical corps and 14 female nurses.

Up to the latest reports only 24 of those on board, including the captain, have survived the treacherous attack, which came without warning.

"It was during the night of June 27, towards 10.30, that the crime occurred. The Llandovery Castle, steaming on her course at some 14 knots, showed the usual navigation and regulation hospital ship lights. Under the over-cast sky she was plain to see and could not be mistaken for anything but what she was."

"The first intimation of the presence of a submarine was a jar and the roar of an explosion from aft. Then the lights went out."

"The rehearsed routine of the ship, however, held good, and along the darkened decks the crew groped to the boat stations and stood by for order to leave her."

DROP IN BREAD

But Yet the Price Remains
The Same

A horse hitched to a baker's wagon, owned by E. J. Begin of Moody street and driven by Joseph Roy of Pawtucketville, ran away in Worthen street at about 6.45 o'clock this morning, but fortunately was brought to a stop before any serious damage was done.

The horse was trotting along through Worthen street towards the mill when suddenly the nut holding the left rear wheel came off and the wheel dropped from the axle, tipping the cart over. The horse became frightened and ran away, smashing the harness to pieces, but was quickly brought to a stop by mill operatives who happened along. The driver was thrown out of the wagon, but fortunately was not injured. Two large boxes filled with bread were bounced out, and their contents spilled. This is the second runaway in which Mr. Roy figured within a few months, but in both instances he managed to pull through uninjured.

regulations made public yesterday by Food Administrator Hoover.

The federal trade commission charged that the millers had made a profit of 45 cents a barrel, despite the food administration's regulations limiting the differential to 25 cents. It develops that the commission's report was anticipated, as the administration's regulations were sent out June 17.

Millers whose profits at the close of the fiscal year June 30 are in excess of the Maximum permitted are required to credit the amount of the excess to the food administration to be liquidated by flour to be sold to the army, navy, marine corps and the food administration's grain corporation in New York at $1 a barrel.

The millers' books will be balanced as of June 30 and again as of July 1 to show the amount of the excess profits.

HEARING BY BOARD OF HEALTH

ON PETITION FOR STABLE IN HOWARD STREET

A meeting of the board of health was held yesterday afternoon and after transacting routine business the board held a hearing on the petition of Friend Bros. for permission to erect a stable to accommodate 15 horses at 60 Howard street near the corner of Oak avenue. Herbert C. Merrill, representing his wife, Mrs. Margaret Merrill, and Alfred P. Sawyer, representing Nathaniel Davis, appeared as remonstrants on the ground that the location of the stable at these points would result in the gathering of flies and the creation of an odor, which would become a nuisance. The matter was taken under advisement.

BE 100 PER CENT.

WHEAT SAVER

Be a 100 per cent wheat saver and never serve wheat flour at your table—until Uncle Sam changes his orders.

Do not think one meal too little to count. Cut out all wheat foods from your menus.

At present Uncle Sam's general orders run this way: Double the usual portion of cereal for breakfast and serve no toast; for luncheon use rice, plain, cooked in milk, with raisins or dates, scalloped with cheese (with no flour thickening), seasoned with tomato, or mixed with meat; or use some form of corn, as fried cornmeal mush or hominy prepared in various ways like the rice; use potatoes, but do not use bread.

Few dinner a double portion of potatoes or potatoes and sweet potatoes, potatoes and rice, or potatoes and hominy will take the place of bread. Use barley flour, corn flour, corn-starch, rice flour, or rice water for thickening soups and sauces.

Use barley, tapioca, peas or beans in soup instead of macaroni, or spaghetti and serve no croutons or crackers.

Use for dessert fruit in various forms, gelatine dishes, or rice and tapioca puddings.

Your bill of fare has been changed, little has been added to your labor, and wheat is saved.

Agreement by Marine Engineers, Shipping Association and Ship Board

Ruling One of the Most Important of Board—Terms of the Agreement

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Strikes are prohibited for the period of the war under an agreement reached by the Marine Engineers' Beneficial association, the American Steamship association and the shipping board announced today.

Union members failing to submit grievances to the board of settlement will become subject to discipline by the beneficial association.

Overtime payment for all work done off watch at sea, except that necessary for the immediate safety of the vessels, was granted the union. The ruling is one of the most important of numerous far-reaching concessions granted by the board, doing away with ancient privileges accorded mates of calling men during their rest hours to any task they might find or devise, without extra pay. Such work now will be compensated at the rate of time and a half.

Overtime pay also will be given engineers kept on board ship at night in port when such work is necessary for the safety of the vessel.

Work not necessary for the ship's safety will be paid at double rates under similar conditions. It was ordered that the time and a half rate be 70 cents an hour and the double time one dollar.

Other demands allowed were $2 a day subsistence for chief engineers and $1.50 a day for assistant engineers and the payment of wages and suitable transportation back to the point where articles originally were signed in the event a ship is sold.

A BIG CELEBRATION IN ENGLAND FOR JULY 4

LONDON, July 2.—Preparations for the celebration of the Fourth of July throughout England practically have been completed.

In London the bell of St. Paul's will be rung as on the great British holidays, while the official observation of the day will be centered in a mass meeting at Central hall, Westminster, where it is planned to launch a plan for an American memorial, probably in the form of a statue of Washington, to be placed near the houses of parliament.

After the baseball game, at which the king will pitch the first ball, there will be numerous dinners.

Five hundred or more American soldiers will be brought to London for the celebration and there will also be formal celebration at all the American camps, for each of which not only the Americans but the British soldiers stationed nearby will be given a holiday.

At Sheffield accommodations have been prepared for 50,000 persons at the Army-Navy baseball game and the field athletics between British and American units.

There will also be a special observance of the day in every hospital in Great Britain, where there are American soldiers or sailors.

The American Red Cross will distribute American flags, packages of cigarettes and tobacco and a personal letter of greeting to each patient and there will be special holiday meals. Volunteer Americans will be taken to the nearest American camp to witness the celebration there.

CZECH INDEPENDENCE RECOGNIZED BY ALLIES

PARIS, July 2.—Stephen Pichon, minister of foreign affairs, on the occasion of the presentation yesterday of the colors to the Czech-Slovak army, addressed a letter on behalf of the French government to Edouard Dunes, general secretary of the Czech national council, recognizing the independence of the Czech-Slovaks as a nation. The letter reads:

"At the moment when the first unit of the Czech-Slovak army in France prepares itself, after receiving its flag, to go to a sector on the front with its French brothers in arms, the French government considers it just and necessary to proclaim the rights of your nation to independence, and to recognize officially the national council as the supreme representative of the future Czech-Slovak government."

A telegram received by M. Pichon from Arthur J. Balfour, the British secretary of state for foreign affairs, says that the British government associates itself with the sentiments expressed by the French government in presenting the colors to the Czech-Slovaks. Mr. Balfour says that the flag presentation represents "a new step in the great strife for liberty and security of small nations, especially those who in Austria-Hungary live under the tyranny of a foreign minority."

NAVY TO RUSH WORK ON BIG WAR CRAFT

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Steps to expedite as much as possible construction of the remaining 48 vessels, including battle cruisers and super-dreadnaughts, of the 156 authorized in the three-year naval building program, approved by congress two years ago, already have been taken by the navy department.

This was disclosed last night by Sec. Daniels in a statement reviewing the provisions of the $1,600,000,000 naval appropriation bill recently passed by congress, which President Wilson yesterday signed.

"The bill," said the secretary, "makes it obligatory to begin construction of all of the 48 vessels of the 156 the construction of which has not previously specifically been directed to be begun. I have regretted that lack of facilities due to the big demand for destroyers, transports and cargo ships rendered it necessary to somewhat abate the fine progress that was being made. However, I requested that the act be worded in this mandatory way, for it is my earnest desire and expectation to carry it out and I have already taken steps to expedite construction as much as possible."

NEWS OF THE DAY IN POLICE COURT

Abram and Barney Dinnerman were in police court this morning, charged with receiving stolen goods belonging to the United States Cartridge Co. The case of Abram was dismissed while Barney was ordered to pay a fine of $50.

Mary Cavanaugh, who was yesterday dismissed on a charge of drunkenness was in court again this morning for the same offense and was sentenced to three months in jail.

John Perry, W. Laforest, Sidney Bernstein, Fred Wolf, and Louis J. Laprise were ordered to pay fines of $5 each for neglecting to sound their automobile horns at the intersection of Chelmsford and Plain streets.

Yvonne Marchand, aged 14, charged with being a stubborn child, was placed on probation.

Omer Field was arraigned in court on a charge of illegal sale. He was given a fine of $5 and sentenced to one month in jail. He appealed the case.

Achilles Kapritsotis was charged with assault and battery on one of his fellow countrymen. Through an interpreter, the court gave him a reprimand and placed his case on file.

The case of Louis Bazilkas, charged with keeping a disorderly house, was continued for one week.

Jacob Ranas was found guilty of drunkenness and was ordered to pay a fine of $5.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

KEITH'S THEATRE

There's comedy galore in the offerings at Keith's theatre for the first half of the present season. The first half to stand a wide-splitting session lasting several hours, you will find the menu much to your liking.

A pair of many Lowell people have seen it. Others have not. Either will profit hugely by witnessing the moving picture production. Those who have seen the stage play will realize how great is the opportunity of the film men to elaborate and make complete a popular play; those who have not seen it will be provided twofold enjoyment.

Taylor Holmes, a mobile-countenanced young gentleman, tall, brisk and good to look at, is the leading role—that of one "T. Boggs Johns," a partner in a pill manufacturing concern. Holmes is about as happy a comedian as Lowell has ever seen. He works with a lot of natural abandon and his methods of extricating himself from delicate situations are uproarious.

"George Nettleton" is the other half of the "Eureka Digestive Pill Co." partnership. He and "Boggs" find it impossible to agree on anything, and they will not even agree to disagree. Their concern is a most flourishing one, but each partner firmly believes that his own ideas are what brought about the great success of the company.

The president of a well known drug company is about to give a huge order to the partners, but they make themselves appear so foolish by their quibbling that he leaves in disgust. Then the partners begin to see the light.

The firm's attorney is called into consultation and he proposes that the partners be dealt a hand of poker to see who is to run or ruin the business for a year. This job will go to the winner. The loser will have to serve as the winner's valet for that length of time, and for every misdemeanor or demonstration of lack of respect he will be fined $100. If either partner tells the terms of the agreement to anybody he will be fined $500.

The terms appear a little stiff at first but "Boggs" is very willing to agree to them. "Nettleton" is not so optimistic, but eventually he agrees. The hand is dealt and "Nettleton" gets a pair of sixes. For a moment "Boggs" head is swimming, but he finally shows his gameness and starts on his mental duties.

From then on complications come thick and fast. In the first place, "Coddles," a slavy in the "Nettleton" home, falls desperately in love with the new builder, much to the latter's distress. Then "Boggs" sweetheart comes to visit the "Nettletons" and she meets her fiancé toggled out in butlers' attire. She demands an explanation, but such explanation means the throwing away of a cool $100. Nothing doing. At length the attorney tells her the facts of the situation. She hits upon a plan whereby her loved one may be released from his bondage. She instructs him to make violent love to "Nettleton's" wife. The plan works successfully and in a short time the agreement is no more.

It's a well acted farce with plenty of action and a capable cast. "The Red-Haired Cupid" is a western comedy, a little more subtle than most affairs of that nature, but wholly enjoyable. A pretty girl, capable cow-boy, and a lot of western scenery combine to make up a delightful half hour's enjoyment.

"The Telephone Belle" is another rip-roaring comedy filled with action. The latest-Pathe News shows scenes at the drawing of draft numbers in Washington last week, a mimic airplane attack on Baltimore, American soldiers in England and the recent circus train wreck. It is an all-round summer bill with a laugh tucked in nearly every foot of film. There will be a complete change of program for July 4.

IRISH SITUATION

Now Well in Hand—Success Attends Policy of the Resolute Government

Relations with England Expected to be More Cordial Than Ever

LONDON, July 2.—Ireland is on the eve of further logical developments of the policy of a "resolute" government, says a Dublin dispatch to the Daily News. The tale of proclamations is not complete. Indeed, in the nature of things, one proclamation must lead to another, for a man who stands still on an adventure such as this is lost.

Lord French, up to a certain point, probably has the situation well in hand. He has such and such power at his disposal and such and such reserve disposed in relation to such and such strategic conditions. He has a fair knowledge of the material opposition which any necessary measures of the government might be expected to encounter, and he believes, he can estimate accurately the character and extent of the moral opposition.

Expected Lessening of Tension

"Some very interesting information as to the methods to be adopted in the circumstances which may, or may not, arise, has come into my possession," writes the correspondent, "and they appear to me well suited to accomplish the desired result. All this is, of course, very satisfactory to law-abiding citizens here. England also will be glad to know that Ireland is, at last to be governed by the world's dominant race."

"At the same time England can have no reasonable doubt that this is the right way to set about securing 50,000 Irish recruits for the British army. Lord French has no doubt his profound knowledge of the problem tells him the thing most needed is to enforce the respect of Ireland for Britain."

"In this pleasing spirit of hope, faith and charity, we observers in Dublin look forward to a new phase in the relations between the two countries. We observe Dublin castle once more throbbing with efficiency and enthusiasm, alert, united and rejuvenated. Not for years has that patriotic institution been able to follow its favorite path so free from care, so unencumbered by doubts and casualties."

Even Sinn Fein is Hopeful

"The Sinn Fein too is happy and hopeful. It asks for the moment nothing better of the imperial parliament. It greets Lord French as a friend in need, and Mr. Shortt, the chief secretary for Ireland, as his brother. The only people who seem to be disappointed are the Irish party leaders. They appear to be convinced that somebody in London has deliberately set about to destroy the constitutional movement toward home rule in order to be able to say to America: 'Home rule is impossible here. There are no home rulers in Ireland, only separatists and pro-Germans.'"

BIG CROWDS AT BISTANY BROTHERS' SHOWS

The Bistany Brothers' shows, exhibiting every afternoon and evening this week on the Lakeview avenue grounds, have all the combined entertaining and exciting qualities of a midway, circus side show, vaudeville show, and Coney Island.

All the persons who contribute to make this big show what it is are there. The pink lemonade vender is there in all his glory. Everywhere on the big lot one hears the usual sounds of a big show with a few others added; the barkers for the dog, pony, and monkey shows who threaten to shout themselves hoarse; the ringing of the bell at the top of the tall pole when the husky chap at the bottom strikes the peg; the plunk of the ball as it misses the coon's head and strikes the net in the background. All the games and other amusements usually found in a big circus are there, from the boxing bouts, wrestling matches, merry-go-rounds, Ferris wheels and motorcycle races to the doll-games, fortune tellers and ring games.

That the public of Lowell knows and appreciates the Bistany shows is made apparent by the fact that last night, in spite of the unfavorable weather, hundreds of people were there. The music from the Bistany Royal band broke upon them as they entered the grounds; they were tempted with hot dogs and lemonade; they visited the tent containing the "Ten in One," a remarkable set of side show freaks; they watched the wrestler as he met the gymnast as they danced in their native fashion and sang their native songs; and they were simply dumbfounded at Professor Romano's display of magic. They found the monkey speedway to be a remarkable novelty and Schepp's dog and pony show was voted to be one of the best features of the circus.

One of the best amusement contrivances is the new set of flying horses which the circus acquired after leaving Lowell over two weeks ago. They are very beautiful and have a very close imitation of the galloping motion. Nothing is shown which by any chance might offend women or children.

The local evening newspaper is the paper that reaches the home when the whole family is there to read it. The Sun fills this field in Lowell.

DAY IN THE LIFE OF
NEW SOLDIER

This is the third article written by Maj. Gen. Hugh L. Scott, former chief of staff of the United States army, now commander at Camp Dix for 'The Sun' and other papers having the service of the Newspaper Enterprise Association: Army life is so different from civil life, the tasks that each man is set to do, and the methods of accomplishing these tasks are all so different, that it might be interesting to the friends and relatives of the boys in the national army to hear something about the day's work of the new soldier.

With this thought in mind, this story of a day's work is written.

It is written of life in a cantonment in the northern part of the country; the cantonment itself lies high and dry in a clean, well-drained area, and is largely composed of great barrack buildings, in which the men are housed and fed.

The young soldier tumbles out of a comfortable bed at 6.15 to the sound of the bugle blowing first call, and has 15 minutes to dress himself and get ready for the first formation of the day—reveille.

Reveille blows at 6.30, he falls in with his comrades on his company street in line.

Mess call sounds at 6.50 sharp. He has until 7.30 to finish his breakfast, make up his bed, finish, sweep out under his cot and do the other little things around his bunk which his mother or sister generally did for him at home.

At 7.30, having cleaned himself and his own belongings, he turns out to clean up his company street to the sound of fatigue call, and for 20 minutes is picking up papers thrown or blown into his company street, cigarettes dropped the night before, match sticks, and odds and ends. This teaches him to carry anything he wants to throw away to the proper receptacle.

At 7.50 the bugle blows first call for morning instruction, and at 8 o'clock we find the soldier in line with his company ready for morning drill.

Now follow three and a half hours of hard work. An hour of setting-up exercises, to exercise and develop every muscle from his neck to his heels, and strengthen and temper his body. He is taught to breathe properly, to fill his lungs with pure air, to stand properly and to become a healthy specimen of American manhood.

From this he goes on to actual drilling. He is taught to become one of a squad which acts under the leadership of a corporal, to march correctly, to turn, to obey commands promptly and unhesitatingly.

At intervals under the shade of a big tree the captain or one of his officers gives the men an informal talk on the personal habits of a good soldier, regulations governing the army, articles of war, military courtesy, or some other study or topic it is wise for the young soldier to know. So the morning goes, alternating drill and lecture, until recall blows at 11.45 and the young soldier is marched back to his barracks, for the well-earned meal, and rest.

One o'clock finds him in line again at drill call, and the afternoon is spent as the morning was, in alternating drill and lecture. According to schedule, the afternoon is varied, and consists of sighting and aiming exercises, preparing the young soldier's shoulders, arms and neck for their task in firing his rifle; he is taught to hold his rifle steadily, to keep his head still, to sight accurately, so that when he goes on the rifle range he can be taught to shoot straight and fast. He has already begun to learn that his rifle is his best friend, and must be taken care of and handled properly.

Shortly before 5 o'clock the young soldier is dismissed from the drill ground, and goes to his quarters to clean up for the formal parade of the day that of retreat.

This ceremony inspires reverence for the flag and all it stands for. Our young friend takes his place in the company, with his uniform and hat well brushed, shoes shined, rifle spotless. The bugles blow retreat, and then at the command, he, with his company presents arms while the band plays "The Star Spangled Banner," and the flag is slowly lowered into the arms of the non-commissioned officer waiting to receive it and fold it so carefully that no corner of it ever touches the ground.

After retreat comes supper, plentiful and well chosen. After supper, with his mess kit washed and put away, the young soldier may join some chums and go to the Y.M.C.A., where he will find a warm welcome, many amusements and a home-like atmosphere, or he may go to the library and pick out his favorite book, or if he is a wise fellow, he will take some of the books on military matters and seek that instruction without which he cannot hope thoroughly to master the army game.

In all companies there will be a school for non-commissioned officers, conducted by one of the officers of the company, and to that school may go any young man who desires to qualify for non-commissioned rank. There are also schools for those men of the national army who are unable to speak English.

In addition to these evening schools, there is a series of technical schools giving special instruction to men having special qualifications. Soldiers appointed to these schools are relieved at certain times of the day to attend.

Thus passes his evening, and at 9.15 the bugle sounds the call to quarters—with a haunting warning note at the end, that tells him that the evening is nearly over, and he must hurry back to his quarters before "lights out," or he will undress in the dark; and then at 10 o'clock there sounds the last bugle call of the day—taps. The slow, sweet sound of the bugle floats over the great cantonment, and before its last note, light after light, has winked out, and instead of the blaze of lighted windows, there is only the moon shining down on the sleeping camp.

THOUSANDS SAY ANGELUS PRAYER IN BOSTON

BOSTON, July 2.—At the suggestion of the committee on public safety, thousands of persons in this city said the official angelus prayer during the noon hour today, calling upon God for victory for the United States and the allies. Several thousand persons attending a public meeting on Boston common recited the prayer in unison. The saying of this special prayer was a part of the observance of "Loyalty week" in Boston which comes to a close Thursday, with the celebration of Independence Day.

One Carload Every Two Minutes

15,000 POUNDS MEAT A MINUTE GOING TO ALLIES

One Hog Out of Every Four Being Sent Abroad.

Shipments of meat have been going to the allies for some time at the rate of 15,000 pounds a minute. As the shipments are kept up during a ten hour day they amount to 2,000,000 pounds daily. The meat goes to soldiers of the United States and the allies and to the civilian population of all the countries at war with Germany.

—Chicago Tribune, June 5, 1918

These statements were made by a prominent representative of the United States Food Administration.

No industry in the country has played a more important part in helping to win the war than the American livestock and meat-packing industry.

Swift & Company alone has been forwarding over 500 car loads of meat and meat products per week for overseas shipment.

TO CLEAN UP LIST OF 1917 DELINQUENTS

BOSTON, July 2.—Acting upon instructions from Provost Marshal General Crowder, Major Roger Wolcott, in charge of the draft in Massachusetts, today ordered local and district boards to "clean up the list of delinquents in the 1917 class." According to Major Wolcott, the authorities wish to clear up these cases before the 1918 delinquents materialize in large numbers. Many have already been apprehended but reclassification of registrants has brought to light scores of additional cases. The work of reclassification by local boards is now nearly finished.

CONVICTED SLAYER TAKEN TO PRISON

WORCESTER, July 2.—Patrick J. Sullivan, sentenced by Judge O'Connell to life imprisonment Saturday night after he had been found guilty of the murder of little Stella Soldi in Clinton on April 5, was taken to the state prison at Charlestown yesterday afternoon. Before leaving the Worcester jail, Sullivan said: "The jury found me guilty of murder in the second degree and I must accept their verdict. The person who murdered Stella Soldi was clearly guilty of first-degree murder. My testimony was exactly the same. I gave Officers McCarthy and Molt in the New Haven jail and it is true I never saw or killed Stella Soldi. 'I appreciate the untiring efforts and work of my counsel in the preparation and trial of my case. I shall constantly be buoyed up in the hope that the guilty man will be caught and then I will stand free and innocent before the world.'"

HELD INQUEST

An inquest was held before Judge John J. Pickman in the court of second sessions yesterday forenoon on the death of Albert Quill, who was instantly killed when struck by a train at the railroad crossing in North Chelmsford about a week ago.

This foggy weather is favorable to the submarines, but they do not seem to be doing very much nowadays.

The Bay State Street Railway company will have to revise its system of collecting fares on long routes. One conductor cannot possibly do the business on a crowded car on Interurban lines.

Mrs. Ballington Booth wants eligible prisoners released that they may enter the army or navy. She does not realize the dignity of our military forces among whom there are no jail birds or convicted criminals of any kind. The prisoners should be compelled to perform some useful work especially at these times when labor is so scarce. They should be used in building roads or in other lines of public work.

COAL SUPPLY

Now is the time to get in a supply of coal for the winter. It is reported that the prospects of getting an adequate supply have improved within the past few weeks; but the only way of making sure of being able to keep warm next winter is to get the coal delivered in your bins.

THE FOURTH

The Fourth, the great anniversary of our independence, will soon be upon us. The arrangements are fast assuming shape for the big parade of the allied nations. It is hoped there will be a great turnout, one that will inspire our citizens with fresh enthusiasm and a greater spirit of co-operation and sacrifice for the success of the war. Let the eagle scream on the Fourth as never before.

LET ALL KEEP FIT

The soldier must be in good physical condition to do the best fighting—he must keep fit.

The general who commands him must keep fit—General Pershing would rather miss a meal than his settings-up exercises, and the general always is in the "pink of condition."

The commander-in-chief, President Wilson, keeps fit by giving two hours each day to exercise, in the open air if possible.

It is just as important that we, back in the home line trenches, keep fit, for we, too, must carry on day in and day out until the war is won. Ill health and lost work days are waste, and the nation cannot countenance waste during war. And by keeping fit, we release so many more doctors and nurses.

Only the fit man can do this bit—which is his best.

THE WAR OUTLOOK

The Allies have materially strengthened their position on all fronts. The Italians have practically stopped the Austrians and inflicted such severe losses that another drive is not expected from that source. On the contrary, there is a splendid opportunity for a strong allied offensive that will probably be taken advantage of in the near future.

On the western front an army of 220,000 Americans blocks the enemy's advance towards Paris, while the defense of the channel has been much improved, not only by an increase in the defending forces but in the recent capture of important positions held by the Germans.

The enemy, it appears, is planning a great drive—probably his last desperate effort, but so far as can be judged, the Allies are better prepared to meet it than they were at any time since the first drive in March.

MAPS OF THE SUBWAYS

It must have occurred to those who visit Boston only occasionally, that the Elevated company could popularize its subway lines to a very great extent by putting out a clear map of the system so that the general public might be assisted in finding out the various connections and ramifications. Since the Washington street lines were added to the subway system formerly existing, it is very much more difficult to pick out a definite route through all the subways, tunnels and transfer stations.

How is the occasional visitor to Boston to find his way in this labyrinth without some guide? The signs suspended at the stations may be sufficient for those familiar with the routes but not for the total stranger who is trying to make his way under the city. Perhaps it would cost considerable to get out such maps and have them available at all subway entrances; but they would be of great service to the public and would undoubtedly increase the revenue of the company by enabling the general public to use the subways more freely than they do.

CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR

Richard H. Long, a prominent shoe manufacturer, has declared himself a candidate for governor. Mr. Long has a record of liberality towards his employees that should bring him the support of most laboring people. He was the first shoe manufacturer in this state to establish the eight hour day with union wages; but that does not indicate his qualification for the high office of governor. When the war was declared he offered his shoe factory and equipment to the government to supply many articles needed by the army. In this way he brought much business to Massachusetts and at the same time rendered valuable aid to the government. That showed his patriotism. He assisted in framing the Federal Reserve banking law and his influence on other public questions has been strongly exerted on the side of progress, justice and right. In point of business experience, sound judgment and administrative ability, he is thoroughly equipped for the position of governor and he is apparently the sort of candidate who would meet favor with the people of Massachusetts.

With Mr. McCall out of the field this year there should be an opportunity to elect a democrat, one who would stand by President Wilson in conducting the war to final success.

FOOD SAVED THE ALLIES

During February and March our allies in Europe suffered from shortage of food. In London, in March, there were always 200,000 or more people in line waiting for a chance to get food supplies. In April the foods saved by Americans began reaching Europe in quantity. Says Mr. Hoover:

"The fortunate thing is, our food got over there just when the great spring offensive of the Germans got under way, and just when the morale of the allied peoples was going down very fast. Our food saved the day and we never could have shipped the amounts we did if it had not been for the enormous savings voluntarily effected by the American people."

"The American housewife is holding the line by feeding our Allies until we get an American army over there in force. If it had not been for her, the war would have been over."

Of course this authoritative information is startling, and we have all got to go right on conserving food, but the point we want to make in respect to this matter is, that it is authoritative information as to what the people's savings and sacrifices have actually accomplished. It is information a pound of which weighs more than a ton of programs, plans, specifications and promises, and giving such information should in much larger degree enter into the war management's policy.

The old claim that informing the American people as to what they have done is informing the enemy, is pretty much a worn-out gag, which in certain cases has had ulterior motives. Germany knows our resources, knows that we're in it for all we're worth and very likely knows what we've accomplished quite as well as most of the American people. Men and women are but grown-up children. Show a child that it has done big things, and, in nine cases out of ten, it will at once go at doing bigger things. Mr. Hoover declares that we saved Europe from collapse, last spring. Very good. We'll put her beyond reach of collapse so long as this war lasts.

LAUNCHINGS ON THE FOURTH

The United States is to celebrate Independence day by launching nearly 100 ships for service in the war.

The launchings will include forty-one steel vessels of from 3,500 to 12,000 tons, making a total of about 250,000 tons; fifty-two wooden vessels of from 3,500 to 4,700 tons each, totaling 185,200 tons. Thus the grand total nets at least 435,200 tons.

The yards at which the launchings will take place with the number of ships turned out by each are:

Steel ships—Eastern yards, 12; Gulf yards, 1; Great Lakes, 11; Pacific coast, 17.

Wooden vessels—Eastern yards, 12; Gulf yards, 11; Pacific coast, 26.

Nothing in the line of shipbuilding at all comparable to this turning out of nearly a hundred ships ever occurred in the history of the world, and furthermore, nothing of the kind was ever before possible. Yet this is but a small item in the program that has been planned by the government.

As a result of the speeding up process, the number of ships now being completed is more than was formerly considered possible.

Chairman Hurley of the shipping board predicts that in two years hence the United States will have a merchant marine of 25,000,000 tons. Since entering the war, the addition from all sources has reached approximately 4,500,000. The work is but well started and is to continue through 1919 and 1920. Already the result of the increase has had a very noticeable effect in reducing the activity of the submarines. In a few months more the submarine menace will practically have been completely overcome. It is thus highly gratifying to know that the United States has been largely instrumental in checking the ruthlessness of the enemy at sea as well as on land. These are forerunners of the success that is to come.

WAR CONDITIONS NOT FELT HERE

There is great need of steadiness and patience among our industrial workers, in these times of inflated prices and labor scarcity.

Those who may feel restive should remember that we are at war and take care not to do anything that will in any way hinder the operations of war or affect the general support of the government by the people.

The people of this country have not yet begun to feel the actualities of war as they are felt in other countries such as England and France, where the people make no fuss over wages so long as they get enough to eat.

Those who remember conditions here in the Civil war can tell a story that would make the profiteers of today ashamed of themselves. And we wish to remark here that profiteers are not all in the contracting or manufacturing class. The workman who is well paid and who makes an unreasonable demand for higher wages must be classed with the profiteers who hamper the government and retard production.

But in reference to Civil war times in Lowell, it might be said that grass was growing upon our streets, so to speak, so far as industrial activity was concerned. Few of the cotton mills had anything to do; the people could not find employment in which to earn a living except in the army, and the cost of living ran much higher than at present. The price of flour was then $24 per barrel; butter, 75 cents per pound; cheese, 50 cents per pound; kerosene, which was then used very largely for domestic lighting, was 15 cents per quart; tea, $1.25 per pound; and meat, eggs, and other commodities proportionately high.

If this war lasts two or three years longer, we shall see a far different state of affairs from what we have at present. Prices will continue to go up, labor will become scarcer, the food shortage more acute, and there will practically be no industries running except those which are necessary to the progress of the war.

For a people at war, and such a war, we are getting through it with remarkably little suffering or privation. The boys who go over are making nearly all the sacrifices and it is not for us at home to raise a great hullabaloo if we cannot get everything to suit us or if we are a little discommoded by the actualities of war.

SEEN AND HEARD

Don't you often wonder how you were ever able to stand the "heavies" during the long winter months.

We know a lot of grown-ups who would be eligible to participate in a certain "Big Baby Show" to be held in the very near future.

A fashion suggestion to the weather man: Please "dollar up" your best on the Fourth of July and come to Lowell.

The Proprietor Saves

There are all kinds of ways for war savings, including that of foregoing certain things on the lunch room bill even when it is obtainable, but seldom, if ever, does it mean any saving in the cost.

We've Seen It Appear So

One reporter wrote concerning the increased appetite which comes with farm work, using the descriptive phrase of "gustatory efforts," which leads to inquiry if a healthy appetite really requires any effort.

Those Higher Haircuts

Knowing him to be about as tight as the bark on a tree with regard to money matters, it was not strange that his associates twitted him about the heavy crop of hair he had grown for several weeks, and then to have it removed only within a few days of the time for the barbers to raise their prices.

Night Ask Berlin to Help

Advertising beach attractions would be simple and inexpensive if some piratical German U-boat skipper could be prevailed upon to take a cruise down the coast. It would have the sharks of the past two seasons beaten to a standstill. And, speaking of sharks, what has become of them this year?

Also, Walking Is Good

When the Bay State road made out its new fare zone schedule for approval by the public service commission, it is only natural that allowances were made for a reduction in traffic, but perhaps not to the extent that has come about. Dealers in bicycles say they are pretty well sold out, picnic plans have been changed so that this revenue has either been much reduced or lost altogether, while flippers flourish as never before.

Doing His "Bit"

When the war garden enthusiast who sits at the next desk talked so much about his crops and the care of care and time necessary to keep his garden coming along right, we were prepared for greater things than found on a tour of inspection. The man who calls four tomato plants, six hills of pole beans (climbing on lath), eight heads of lettuce and a solitary cucumber plant a war garden is in the same class as the man who owns a flivver and calls it a car.

Happily Disappointed
Paying his fare on the first lap of a trip that always costs 12 cents, one Bay State road patron was asked by the conductor how far he was going, and if he wanted a transfer. "Better take it," said the conductor. "I don't know if it is any good, but you can try." Sure enough, it worked and the next fare was only two cents. One example of how the new zone system made a

He hurries out of his fast asleep home to meet angler number 2. They were to meet on the corner. Friend number 1 waits, number 3 hasn't showed up yet. Friend number 1 waits and waits, looking at watch every half minute. An hour later friend number 2 shows up. Looks as though he got up just five minutes before. Makes excuse of being late on account of looking for tackle. The missus must have put it some place or thrown it away but he did scrape up a pole and hook. Who's got the bait? Why I thought you were to get it. Why no! I figured you were to get it some place. They get going. You know the rest. Solstice

(Copyright, 1918, N. E. A.)
This is the Solstice of the World and all the eyes of long dead nations stare at us. Time is ours. If we should fall or fail, into the black abyss we stumble thunderous.

The slaves of vanished races clank their chains; Earth's righteous rebels smiling through centuries of suffering dissent; Mute martyrs of all faiths which Time has blent. To One Faith that better 'tis to die Than spawn upon the carrion of a lie; All the submerged, the beaten and the Leap back to the momentary life to come. With streaming eyes to beg us not to pause. Till we have scotched this dragon, till his claws hang loose, his fangs uprooted and his backward, scorched his hideous soul to death.

The Solstice of the World and of The Race! The future ages, whereunto we turn. Look with their unborn eyes, which finally burn Through the long corridors of endless space And fling the unyielding question in our face; "What of our destiny, if you should falter?" What if you halt be times, if you should falter? And in mistaken mercy leave this Beast.

One of his privileged, praying heads to feast Upon our vitals? Smite! and sear the necks! Lest he return again and still again to vex Our coming generations. "Farewell!" and "Hall!" The Past and Future cry to us, "Assail him in his ditch and tear him tooth and nail!"

By all the hosts who died without avail! By all the unborn knocking at the pale! By all our living souls: we dare not falter!

TO FEED HUNS

Holland Plans to Turn Over
50,000 Tons of Potatoes
to the Germans

America May Retaliate and
Cut Off Supplies if the Report is True

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Official announcement from The Hague that the Netherlands government has agreed to export potatoes from the new crop in equal quantities to the belligerent nations, brought the disclosure yesterday of the fact that the United States government has information of Holland's intention to export 50,000 tons of potatoes to Germany.

Officials believe that in expressing a willingness to export potatoes to each of the belligerents, Holland is undertaking to disguise her intention of supplying large quantities of much-needed food to Germany alone.

Potatoes on Way to Germany

Shipments to Germany already are under way, according to cable advices, the movement following closely on the announcement in Germany of the reduction of the potato ration from seven to three pounds weekly.

To supply Germany anything like 50,000 tons of potatoes, Holland, it was said yesterday, not only would be violating an agreement with Great Britain to supply that country and Germany each with 5000 tons of potatoes yearly, but also probably would imperil her food agreement with the United States.

Under that agreement America promised the Netherlands government grain in large quantities, and since much of it already has been shipped, some officials were of the opinion that the government, while disinclined to deprive Holland of further food supplies, might, in the face of public opinion in this country have to take drastic retaliatory action against Holland if she insists on allowing Germany 50,000 tons of potatoes at a time when the central powers are believed to be experiencing a food crisis.

Washington Surprised

Holland's willingness to give Germany this great amount of food caused surprise among officials, in view of recent famine in that country, which was narrowly averted by prompt action of the American government in shipping grain and other foodstuffs.

Word is reaching Washington that already protests are being heard in Holland against the potato exportation on the ground that famine may be expected there next winter.

NEW YORK TO PARIS
IN FIVE DAYS

PARIS, July 2.—A naval base on the French coast used by the Americans in their transport traffic is destined after the war to become the European marine terminus of a five-day New York-to-Paris route, according to American naval officers, as their views are reported by Raymond Lestonnat in L'illustration.

"It is the port of Europe, how is it you have not found that out for yourselves?" the writer records the Americans as saying. "The new liners which we will build after the war and which will put Paris within five days of New York, will use it. We shall build a new railroad to Paris and everybody will come this way from continent to continent."

WAR RELICS WANTED

A very interesting feature of the Fourth of July celebration on the South common will be the exhibition of war relics to be given in the huts of the Knights of Columbus, Y.M.C.A. and the Red Cross. The public is asked to lend any war relics, either of the present war or of past wars, they may have in their possession. The proceeds of the exhibition will go to the three organizations.

Any person who wishes to loan such relics from Wednesday noon to Thursday night should leave them at the headquarters of any of the three organizations or at war work headquarters, 119 Merrimack st.

A proper guard will be placed over the exhibits while on display.

WOUNDED IN ACTION

Private William Dube, Battery D, 12th Field Artillery, was wounded in the action in France, according to a telegram received here late yesterday. Private Dube is a Lowell boy, but his parents are not living. He enlisted on June 6 of last year and went to France in January. In a recent letter to a friend he said that he was in the best of health. His sister is with a telephone unit "over there."

COAL IS COMING

Storrow Confident Conditions
Will Be Better Than Those of Last Winter

State Promised Over a Million Tons More by Federal Officers

BOSTON, July 2.—A detailed statement concerning the outlook for coal this winter was made by Councillor James J. Storrow, fuel administrator for New England, at the meeting of the city council yesterday. In declaring that the proposal of a committee of the council to establish a municipal coal pocket was not feasible because no coal supply could be diverted from the amount that will be allotted to Massachusetts, Mr. Storrow expressed confidence that general conditions this year would be better than those of last winter.

He said that Massachusetts had been promised by the federal authorities an increase of 12 per cent in the anthracite delivery as compared with last year. This would mean, Mr. Storrow stated, about 1,000,000 tons increase.

"There is no such thing as the municipality going out and using $100,000 or $1,000,000 and increasing the amount of coal that can be brought into Boston," said Mr. Storrow. "Every ton of coal that is coming in between now and the first of next April has been allotted; so much to this city or town and so much to that. Coal will move in this state on that schedule."

"I think, too, we have a right not to expect such a winter as we had last year. We have restricted deliveries to people taking more than six tons. We hope that people are going to be more economical, that the winter is going to be an average winter, and we have 12 per cent more coal. With those three factors, we hope that conditions here next winter will be very materially improved as compared with last winter."

Saturday, July 6, is "Quarter Day" at The Lowell Five Cent Savings Bank.

GLADDEN DEAD

Nationally Known Congregational Minister and Author
Died Today

Wrote Many Books, Including His "Recollections"—
Sketch of His Career

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 2.—Rev. Dr. Washington Gladden, nationally known Congregational minister and author, died today after a second stroke of paralysis, suffered last Sunday. He was 82 years old.

Distinguished in the religious world, Dr. Washington Gladden also was widely known as a magazine editor and writer, and the author of numerous books, included among which is his "Recollections."

While working as a printer on The Gazette at Oswego, N. Y., Dr. Gladden first began the practice of writing. While he was pastor of the Congregational church at North Adams, Mass., where he had been called in 1866, he began to contribute to The Independent and other magazines, and wrote his first book, "Plain Thoughts on the Art of Living." Later Dr. Gladden became identified with leading magazines and at the close of duties as pastor at North Adams in 1871, he joined the staff of The Independent, serving as editor of the publication for four years.

At the close of 1874 Dr. Gladden resigned his editorship and went to Springfield, Mass., as pastor of the North Congregational church. Eight years later he became pastor of the First Congregational church of Columbus, O. He continued pastor of the Columbus church for 31 years, relinquishing official duty at the close of 1913 and continuing thereafter as pastor emeritus.

From Sunday to Sunday during his active pastorate in the Ohio capital, he labored to disentangle Christianity from what he believed to be its hampering fogmas, to vitalize it and make application of it to the problems of the individual, the city, the state and the nation.

He had no sooner begun his pastorate than the antagonism of labor and capital in the Hocking Valley coal mines. Though prominent members of his church were among the employers, he spoke out from his pulpit and in private conferences, setting up ethical standards that were new to many. Here too, he preached sermons which were subsequently gathered into a book called "Who Wrote the Bible?" in which he maintained it was written by men without unusual inspiration, which assertion became the object of no few attacks throughout the country.

It was during this active part of his life also that he made his famous reference to "tainted money," the occasion being consideration of a gift by John D. Rockefeller. At a national Congregational meeting, he severely attacked gifts to Christian work and his references became known country-wide.

His activity in bringing church life closer to every day public was well illustrated in his personal work in Columbus. He was in the forefront of the fight for municipal reform and in 1900-1902, he served as a member of the Columbus city council. He greatly helped to frame new trolley franchises, improve the water supply and organize citizens for the election of better officials.

Dr. Gladden for many years manifested deep interest in educational work and lectured before leading colleges and universities, both of the United States and England.

Various honors directly connected with his Christian ministry came to Dr. Gladden. In 1911 he was a delegate to the International congress of Congregationalists in London, and for three years was moderator of the Congregational church of America—the highest honor in that denomination in the United States.

Few of his manifestations of political interest attracted more attention than his friendship for Theodore Roosevelt which began when the latter was police commissioner of New York City. Through the instrumentality of Colonel Roosevelt, Dr. Gladden was able to assist in the settlement of the great anthracite coal strike in 1902.

Dr. Gladden was born at Pottsgrove, Pa. Feb. 11, 1836, the son of Solomon Gladden and Amanda Daniels. Until he was sixteen he lived on farms near Oswego, N. Y. When he was 16 his uncle got him the place of printer's apprentice in the office of the Oswego Gazette. In 1855 he entered the academy to prepare for the ministry. GERMANS ENRAGED OVER
ALLIED AIR RAIDS

GENEVA, Switzerland, July 2.—South German newspapers, in order to reassure the nervous and angered populations of towns along the Rhine, attempt to explain away as unimportant the aerial bombardment of Mannheim Saturday morning.

It was really the most terrible raid on a German town during the war. The Germans officially announce that five were killed and 14 wounded, but the figures could be quadrupled. Several victims were, unfortunately, prisoners. Allied officers, who, disdaining shelter, cheered the allied aviators.

The residents of Mannheim were chagrined in witnessing five or six German machines running away from the British. Three of the former were brought down in flames near the town. The Badische aniline and soda factory, upon which bombs fell, blazed for many hours.

One of the largest banks was wrecked, its office furniture being blown into the principal street of the city. The population, already nervous before the raid, is now panic-stricken.

The raid on Karlsruhe, according to German reports, caused only material damage.

The exodus from Rhine towns continues and house rents have depreciated 35 per cent.

WILSON FORBIDS

TREATING SOLDIERS

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Furnishing of liquor to officers and men of the army within private homes is prohibited under new regulations formulated by President Wilson and Secretary Baker and made public last night by the commission on training camp activities.

Dry zones around every camp where as many as 250 men are stationed for more than 30 days also are established.

BREAK RECORD

Americans Equipped Hospital
in Three Days

PARIS, July 2.—What is believed to be a record for the speedy preparation of evacuation hospitals close behind the battle front was made by the American Red Cross along the line northeast of Paris a few days after the last German offensive was launched. Three hospitals were established within a very short time by the officers in charge, whose work has received many flattering comments.

In the case of one hospital, the officer in charge left Paris with ten nurses and 10 tons of equipment without knowing exactly where the hospital was to be located. He found a desirable building, rented it on the spot and had the place fully equipped, including an operating and X-ray room, within three days.

The second hospital had a few beds and a little equipment when the Red Cross officers arrived. Its capacity was increased to 600 beds by means of equipment rushed from Paris by motor trucks. The trucks, with bedding and hospital equipment, reached the hospital simultaneously with the wounded from the battlefield.

The third hospital is in a sector where American troops are brigaded with the British. The first two are behind the Franco-American front. Groups of nurses, equipped with gas masks and ready to leave for the front, are a common sight in Paris.

FEDERAL EXPLOSIVES ACT
NOW IN FORCE

The federal explosives act, a war measure adopted to control the manufacture, storage, purchase and use of explosives and ingredients in this country, is now in force. The law affects physicians, educational institutions, contractors, wholesale and retail druggists, manufacturers and many other branches of the trade, who have in their possession ingredients classed as explosives in quantities of one ounce or more and they must be licensed, while purchasers of said ingredients in quantities of one ounce or more must also have a license.

The government has placed a ban on the use of nitric acid, bichromates, chlorates, nitrates of all grades and strengths, mixed acids, perborates and perchlorates, permanganates, peroxides and phosphorus, and all who have any of the listed ingredients in quantities of one ounce or more in their possession, are affected under this law, while included in this list are also fireworks except those sold in ten cent packages, flashlight powder, all kinds of smokeless powder, and dynamite. All dealers who sell fireworks must have a vendor's license.

The purpose of this law is to prevent disloyal persons from procuring explosives and ingredients. Daniel F. O'Connor is the United States explosives inspector, with headquarters at the Federal building in Boston, while the licensing agents in this county are as follows:

Why food cooked in MAZOLA tastes so much better.

BUTTER and all animal fats burn at a comparatively low temperature. This gives a bad taste to food. Mazola, the rich, sweet oil from corn, can stand so much more heat without burning it "crisps over the food". Never imparts any burnt taste. No odors of cooking in the house. Doesn't have to be melted. Always ready for use. Perfectly delicious on salads—and as a dressing for spinach and other vegetables—instead of butter. Many folks prefer it to even the best olive oil—it never becomes rancid. How long since you have had really good salad oil? Mazola is always delicious, pure, sweet. Costs less than half the price of good olive oil. Try this tasty dressing tonight.

Salad Dressing with Chives

1 tablespoon vinegar	Pinch paprika
2 tablespoons Mazola	1 teaspoon minced Chives
1 hard boiled egg	1 teaspoon salt

Mix Mazola, seasonings and vinegar thoroughly with Dover egg beater, — for French dressing; then add egg and chives chopped fine—beaten until thoroughly mixed. If chives are not obtainable, onion salt may be used instead, leaving out the salt.

If you want to be sure of a pure, golden oil—always the same, delicate and delicious for all cooking and salad uses—see that you get Mazola. Mazola is always uniform. Its preparation is scientific and exact.

For sale in pints, quarts and gallons. (The large sizes are specially economical to buy.) Get a can from your grocer today.

Barnard-Lawson
A pretty wedding took place Saturday when Miss Sadie Lawson, a popular young lady of this city and Mr. Dwight L. Barnard were united in the bonds of matrimony at the home of Rev. Albert G. TRAFFIC RULES fic in that particular section. The time varies from "as soon as possible" to 20 minutes.

Windsor and Chester streets, running from Westford to Princeton, are made one-way thoroughfares. The mayor explained that these streets are already one-way streets in practice, but there is no ordinance in effect to back up the police in the enforcement of the rule.

Present regulations which conflict with the new order of things are repealed.

The meeting was called at 10.07, with all members present. A petition of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. for the re-location of a pole in Central street, near North, was set for a hearing on July 9. John N. Gallego petitioned for a concrete sidewalk at 36 Hudson street, and the matter was referred to Commissioner Morse. A petition for a gas light in Burns street was likewise referred to Mr. Morse.

The petition of William H. Saunders for a garage and the right to keep gasoline at 133 Methuen street, and that of Charles E. Cook for permission to erect a garage, were assigned for hearings on July 23.

The petition of the U. S. Cartridge Co. to load and haul powder was read and a hearing set for July 23.

A favorable report from Commissioner Morse on the petition of Richard B. Ward, that a portion of Lang street be laid out and accepted was read, and also a recommendation from the city engineer that the work be done. The report was accepted and the order to have the portion of the street in question laid out and accepted was adopted.

Commissioner Morse asked permission for the changing and re-establishing of a portion of the westerly sidewalk on Hildreth street, and the petition will remain in the city clerk's office for seven days before action is taken.

Harold J. O'Brien, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. O'Brien, of 90 Parkview avenue, a graduate of the Lowell high school, class '16, has enlisted as a second class seaman in the naval reserve and he expects to be called to the colors about July 23.

Those who enjoy an occasional dip in the Merrimack river will be pleased to learn that two polling booths are to be set up on the banks of the river off Varnum avenue, to be used as dressing places. One will be in readiness by Thursday, July 4.

Her associates, not wishing to lose one of their number without some recognition of the good fellowship that has existed, presented her a garnet ring set in pearls.

Alexander Duncan, was appointed constable and Mayor Thompson explained that it was often of convenience to have a member of the city solicitor's office force a constable.

Permission was granted the Lowell Electric Light Corp. to erect poles on Bowers street, between Arlington and Mt. Vernon streets, and also to erect and maintain poles on Dracut street, between Fourth and Sixth avenues.

Fire Escape Bids
It was voted to award the contract for the erection of fire escapes on the Greenhalge school to Boutwell Bros. Bids were opened yesterday and that of Boutwell Bros. was the lowest received, $1680.

The council voted to award to Amos Kendall of 12 Washington street the sum of $30 for damage done to property as a result of the sewer in that section backing up. The award was made upon recommendation of the city solicitor.

The following were given leave to withdraw: Personal injury claims, Elizabeth Wynne, Ida L. Shaw, Delia Higgins; damage to automobile, Arthur Souder, James Gove; damage to personal property, Frederick A. Taylor.

Homestead Road
Henry Stirling, secretary of the homestead commission, spoke at length in favor of the granting of the petition of Charles F. Gettemy, chairman of the homestead commission, and himself as secretary of the commission, that Homestead road be accepted, macadamized and sidewalks laid on both sides, including a circle; also on Hildreth street, in front of Lots 2 and 13, and that a grass plot be put in the centre of the circle in Homestead road. Mr. Stirling explained that it was the purpose of the commission to have that section maintained as suburban appearance as possible and that is why the grass plot had been asked.

Commissioner Morse said that it would be too costly to put an edge-stone around such a plot and that owing to the size of it, the edge-stone would give it a very hedged appearance. He maintained, also, that it would be a waste of time to put in a grass plot unless there were stone around it.

Lieut. Harris Retired
Lieut. Henry F. Harris, a member of the fire department, petitioned to be placed on the pension list as being permanently disabled. The city physician certified that in his judgment Lieut. Harris was unfit for active service. It was voted that he be retired and placed on the pension list. Lieut. Harris has been a member of the fire department since 1885.

WORK OR FIGHT

Gen. Crowder Explains New Regulations Which Went Into Effect Yesterday

Men Outside of Draft Age Not Affected—Purely a Military Step

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Commenting on the new work or fight regulations which went into effect yesterday, Provost Marshal General Crowder emphasized today that the order did not affect men outside of draft ages. Several communities apparently have confused it with the anti-loitering laws in some states.

He explained that the work or fight order was purely a military step and that regulations regarding employment or military service for unregistered men were not embraced in his functions.

Of the services performed by men who leave non-essential pursuits to take up essential work, he said:

"The army and navy are taking the men who are best able physically to do the fighting. But that is only one part of the national task imposed by the war. The other part, that part which falls on the other men, is to set free those men who are to do the fighting. Every man who helps to set free a fighting man is helping to fight and win the war."

"Now many of the men in deferred classes 2, 3 and 4, deferred on grounds of dependency, are not engaged in effective industries."

"The spectacle is not a satisfying one of a contingent of drafted men being marched down the street while other men of their own age, watching from the windows, remain behind to sell cigarettes or dispense soda fountain drinks, solely because they have received deferment on ground of dependency."

"If these men of the same age are to stay behind, let them at least get into work more effective to help win the war. Their deferment takes them out of military service and yet serves no economic war purpose whatsoever. They are of military age and therefore have the primary duty to do war work. If their dependency gives them deferment from immediate military war work, let them at least do something economically useful to maintain the nation's welfare while at war. They should get into some useful and effective occupation or else forfeit their deferment from military service. The alternative is a fair one."

VISCOUNT ISHII IS AT FAIRHAVEN FOR JULY 4

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Viscount Ishii, the Japanese ambassador, accompanied by his wife, has gone to Fairhaven, Mass., near New Bedford, to take part in Fourth of July ceremonies there. GOVERNMENT INVESTIGATORS

President Golden, were to the effect that a big gain in the number of strikers was made this morning. Quiet picketers were placed at the gates of the mill with instructions to report as to the number of operatives who went to work. Mr. Golden stated later that according to reports, about 80 per cent. of the operatives did not report for work this morning.

Speaking about the strike and the cause of it, Mr. Golden stated emphatically this morning that the grievance was not one between the mill officials and the loomfixers, but one between the corporations and the operatives in general. He said the ten per cent. increase was not accepted and the strike was ordered not alone for the loomfixers or for organized labor, but for all the operatives employed in the mills.

The mill officials admit that the strikers made some gain this morning, but they claim that every department of the various plants is in operation and that means that more than 20 per cent. of the help are at work.

Stationary Firemen

The stationary firemen who are employed at the Appleton Co. and who left their work yesterday returned to work this morning. One of the officials of the Stationary Firemen's union stated to a Sun reporter that the firemen at the Appleton Co. left their work on their own volition. He said they had not been ordered out by the union and had had no request from the United Textile Workers of America to go on strike. He said the men conferred with him yesterday afternoon and after being informed that their action would not be sanctioned by the union, they decided to return to work.

Mass Meeting

A mass meeting for the women weavers of this city will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Appleton Co. hall. The meeting will be presided over by President John Hanley of the Lowell Textile council and the gathering will be addressed by President John Golden and Secretary-Treasurer Sarah A. Conboy of the United Textile Workers of America.

It was stated this morning that through the efforts of Commissioner Warnock the hall of the Carmen's union in Runels building had been secured free for the use of the strikers. The hall at 32 Middle street, where meetings were held yesterday and today, being inadequate for the large gatherings.

The committee which is conducting the strike is composed as follows: John Hanley, Lowell Textile council chairman; Frank N. Stimpson, Lowell Textile council secretary; Walter G. Roche, Boston's union; Joseph Jemery, Loomfixers; Ernest Arsenault, Dressers; Frank Balasa, Polish Textile Workers; Thomas Allard, Carders and Pickers; William McLaren, Twisters and Mrs. Thomas J. Reagan, Cotton Weavers.

Quiet Picketing

The mill gates were thrown wide open this morning at the usual time, but in order to give the tardy workers or those who changed their mind at the last minute an opportunity to enter the factories, the gates were kept open until after 7 o'clock. Groups of strikers were in evidence in various points in the vicinity of the mills, but not the slightest trouble was reported. Picketeters for the Tremont & Suffolk were stationed at the bridge at the corner of Moody and Suffolk streets, while others, who were looking after the Merrimack mill located themselves at the corner of John and Merrimack streets. The picketers were told not to encroach upon the companies' land and were also told to be careful as to their every action.

Stephen H. Scribner, son of Commander E. H. Scribner, U.S.N., of Tyler Park, this city, was enlisted at the local navy recruiting station this morning as a seaman and was forwarded to Boston for final examination. Scribner has recently returned from England and Scotland, where he was with a New England saw mill unit for a year or so. This unit has been disbanded and as it held no military jurisdiction over its members, Scribner was allowed to return home. He was unable to remain out of the service, however, and eventually joined the branch in which his father is serving.

Other recruits at the local station today were: Thomas J. Fitzsimmons, 173 Payette street; John T. Dwyer, 22 Sydney street; Alfred J. Beaudry, Marlboro; Carl J. Lavie, Marlboro. Gold, lately with the department of labor at Washington and one of the best versed men on the labor question in the country, is to speak in high school hall this evening on "American Labor Behind the War" will be greeted with more than usual interest. Mr. Gold's appearance here and the subject of his address were arranged weeks ago and there was no thought of a strike being in progress in this city.

The meeting is the third of an open forum series being held here under the general direction of the New England Congress of Forums and the immediate jurisdiction of a local committee, of which Hugh J. Molloy is chairman. Admission is free and everybody is urged to attend for the subject could not be more opportune.

CONTROL OF R. R. Reduction of $108,196,836 in Operating Income Roads Under Federal Control

Report of Condition After Five Months by Interstate Commerce Commission

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Reduction of $108,196,836 in the operating income of 123 of the largest railroads during the first five months under government control, compared with the same period a year ago, was announced today by the interstate commerce commission.

In May last of the five months, the roads were beginning to recover from the paralyzing effects of blizzard and embargoes and the operating income rose to a point nearer last year's figures. For the five months, the total was $186,987,144, compared with $295,183,970 during that period last year, and for May it was $64,276,805 against $76,290,630 last May.

In spite of the reduced operating income, revenue of the roads actually was larger for the five months this year than last. They were $1,390,283,620, compared with $1,274,970,498, giving a margin which was more than eaten up by increased expenses.

For May operating revenues were $313,790,181, against $284,782,550 in 1917. Operating expenses for May 1918, were $226,638,189 against $196,793,110 for May 1917.

The net revenue from railway operations during May, 1918, was $77,101,812. In 1917, it was $87,999,410. In reporting the figure on which government compensation is based, which is the railroad operating income less certain credits for equipment and joint facility rents, the commission found that the net income of the 123 railroads for May 1918, was $81,002,511 against $75,551,822 in May 1917.

Operating income of the eastern roads was $31,186,613 in May, 1918, against $33,923,488 in the Western district, it was $22,563,444, against $23,334,088. Southern roads with $10,524,746 in May 1918, against $9,032,054 exceeded the operating figures for 1917.

THE ARMY BOXING RULES

War Department Issues Rules to Govern Contests Among 1,500,000 Men in Training

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Official army boxing rules codified to govern contests among the million and a half of men in training have been issued by war department commission on training camp activities. The new code differs radically from the regulations commonly in use for the last ten or fifteen years and resembles more particularly the Marquis of Queensberry rules which laid stress on fast, clever fighting. Greater credit is given to the boxer who is aggressive in spite of punishment than to the one who covers up or clinches.

"A million and a half men of the new army are being taught to box," says Dr. Joseph E. Rayeroff, head of the athletic division of the commission, "because it develops in them those qualities of alertness and pugnacity which make them better bayonet fighters. Success in bayonet fighting depends upon aggressive determination and attack even more than upon skill. Boxing develops this aggressiveness in offense. A fierce-attacking forward action bayonet charge means 95 per cent. quota of fighting men returned to safety. This is an important reason why the new boxing rules set a high premium upon offensive rather than on defensive fighting."

All back stepping, covering up and purely defensive work are discouraged under the army boxing rules and each contestant is made subject to a penalty for such work. This latter recommendation is a direct departure from the accepted standard of ring strategy which puts a premium on purely defensive tactics.

Under the new rules a total of six blows constitutes the ground plan of the boxing program. The maintenance of such a series of blows must be taken into consideration in the final judgment of points. "The value of attack cannot be overestimated, and should be considered a prime factor in the allotting of points," it is stipulated.

Referee Shorn of Power

Under the army rules the referee is shorn of much power. Many of his active functions have been delegated to two judges, each of whom is assisted by a clerk. Fouls are clearly defined and are within the jurisdiction of the referee who may disqualify immediately any contestant for attempted unsportsmanlike tactics. Fouls are limited to the standard of 10 seconds. To gain fast action the time limit per round has been made two minutes instead of three minutes for novice bouts. Four rounds will be boxed except in the case of division championship contests which may run six rounds.

The big contribution of boxing to military training is to develop in men the willingness and ability to fight at close range. Its purpose is to teach soldiers to give and take punishment. There is a close relation in the qualities required for boxing and bayonet fighting. Both require agility of body, quickness of eye, good balance and control in giving a punch or thrust, and an aggressive fighting spirit that breaks down or weakens defense, and makes openings for an effective "finish."

An efficient fighting soldier must not only be trained in the technique of offense and defense, but must be "charged" with the proper fighting spirit. We are dealing with men who are strangers in the main to personal combats of any nature, and it is toward this class of soldiers that the major portion of athletic and boxing activities should be directed. Forward action and aggressiveness in bayonet fighting is essential. Aggressive action in boxing tends to the same end and should be given due credit in the judging of contests.

Principal Features of Code

The principal features of the army boxing code are as follows:

The ring, which is not to be less than 16 nor more than 20 feet square, must be enclosed by at least three ropes, covered with cloth wrappings, to be stretched from four posts properly padded. The four of the ring shall extend beyond the lower ropes for a distance of not less than two feet. If the floor is of wood or other hard substance, it is to be padded with matting, corrugated paper or felt, or dampened sawdust covered with tightly stretched canvas.

Gloves in all novice contests shall not weigh less than ten ounces, and for "trained men" bouts, eight ounces. Six or eight ounce gloves may be used for divisional championship contests. Trained men matches are for those who have won elimination company championships. All contestants who have not qualified in elimination matches will be regarded as novices.

Contests for trained men shall be limited to four rounds, of two minutes' duration with an intermission of one minute between rounds for rest. If the judges disagree the referee may at his discretion call for a fifth round, limited to two minutes. The novice contests are subject to the same ruling. The final hours in divisional championships shall consist of six rounds, each of three minutes, each and no extra rounds can be ordered.

The officials shall be a referee, two judges, two clerks one time-keeper and a medical officer. The referee shall take his position within the ring his primary duty being the strict enforcement of the rules of boxing and of fair play. He can stop a bout at any stage and make a decision if he considers it too one-sided or in case he considers the competitors are not in earnest he can stop the bout and disqualify one or both of the contestants.

Judges sit opposite The judges shall be stationed at opposite sides of the ring to watch every phase of the bout and render a decision. Each judge shall be assisted by a clerk, of his own choice, for the purpose of keeping an account of the score of both contestants as dictated by the judge during the progress of each round. At the conclusion of each round the clerk shall submit to the judge a point summary and shall notify the judge at any stage of the round if one contestant leads an opponent by the maximum of 20 points.

The time keeper must be seated close to and outside of the ring and shall indicate the beginning and end of each round by bell, gong or whistle. The medical officer shall always be present and shall supervise the physical condition of contestants and decide whether hand bandages are necessary and to inspect same.

Each contestant shall be assisted by two seconds, who must not speak, signal or in any way coach their principals during the progress of a round, nor may they claim time or indicate in any way decisions for them. They must remain seated during the contest and shall not enter the ring until the timer indicates the termination of a round. They shall leave the ring promptly when time is called at the beginning of a round. Any violation of these provisions may render a principal liable to disqualification by the referee.

In scoring a maximum of 20 points shall be allotted to each round of the contest. Fourteen points shall be given for attack and defense. Attack shall cover the following points: Clean hits, offensive action and well delivered partial hits. Defense shall cover blocking, making opponent miss and balance and readiness to counter-attack. Four points shall be given for generalship and two for aggressiveness. Points or fractions of points shall be deducted for infractions of the rules. At the end of each contest the clerk shall write or otherwise indicate to their judge the score of each contestant.

Points will be deducted for stalling, lack of earnestness or going down without being hit; covering up; clinching and hitting while holding an opponent.

Contests in all championships will be held in the following weights and classes: Bantam, 115 pounds. Featherweight, 125 pounds. Lightweight, 135 pounds. Welterweight, 145 pounds. Middleweight, 160 pounds. Light heavyweight, 175 pounds. Heavyweight, 185 over 175 pounds.

THE CRESCENT A A

The First Meeting of New Organization on July 4

Now that the United States government has officially endorsed boxing, and added it to the regular routine of training at all military camps, Lowell is to come into its own, and will encourage the sport which has proven so beneficial to our soldier boys. At all the training camps a boxing instructor is at work, showing the boys the advantages to be derived from boxing. Many of the most effective movements employed in the boxing game are identical with those governing the use of the bayonet.

The Crescent Athletic association recently organized under the laws of Massachusetts, will hold its first meeting on the evening of July Fourth and an attractive program has been arranged for the "Openers."

Bushy, Graham of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Johnny Donovan of South Boston, will meet in the main event of 12 rounds.

Tony Vatin, the "iron man" from Brighton, and Al Girard, an athlete who hangs his hat in Boston, will appear in the second feature of the evening's entertainment.

Other numbers of the round-up are Young Welch of Lowell and Jack Burke of Charlestown and George Brooks of Cambridge and Johnny Boyle of Lowell, whose travels are limited to six posts.

Application blanks are now being applied for at headquarters in Hurd street.

None but members will be admitted to the meetings.

ITALIAN VICTORY

Czecho-Slovak Troops Distinguished Themselves in Aiding Italians

Among Austrians Captured by Czechs was Brother of One of Victorious Company

ITALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Monday, July 1. (By the Associated Press.)—Czecho-Slovak troops distinguished themselves in the capture of Monte di Valbella by the Italians. Among the number of Austrian prisoners captured by a company of Czechs was a brother of one of the men in the victorious company. A joyful reunion took place.

One of the questions asked of his newly found brother by the prisoner was: "Whose offensive is this? The Italians seem to be doing all the fighting."

The local actions resulting in the reconquest of Monte di Valbella, Col. del Rosso and Col. di Chelo had for their objects the widening of the Italian front west of the Brenta and the driving of the enemy from the positions he captured last Christmas.

lost to the Italians in January and regained on June 15. The Italian losses were slight compared to those sustained by the Austrians. This was due entirely to the violence and accuracy of the Italian and allied artillery fire. Under cover of this fire, the infantry was able to take the enemy positions without much opposition and to dig in at once. The Austrians, however, had been behind the lines and destroying houses centuries old. Trees 150 years old on Monte Melago have been torn up. The attack on Col. del Rosso began Sunday morning shortly before noon. The Italians took the height from the Third Edelweiss division which formerly fought under Emperor Charles. The division suffered severely. Italian airplanes showered it with bombs while the Bersaglieri exacted a heavy toll in hand-to-hand fighting. Many of the Bersaglieri wore their red fatigue caps during the battle.

RESTRICT OCEAN TRAVEL

Revised Rules for Passengers from U. S. for Foreign Ports Effective

NEW YORK, July 2.—Ocean travel during the war was further discouraged today when revised rules for passengers from the United States for foreign ports became effective. Hereafter prospective passengers must give three days' notice to the customs intelligence bureau of their intention to leave the country. Male applicants for passports who are liable to be drafted, must exhibit permits from local draft boards. The new rules also are more stringent as regards baggage, and persons wishing to send on voyagers telegrams or messages to passengers are warned that such missives must reach the pier prior to sailing time.

Money deposited this week in The Lowell Five Cent Savings Bank begins to draw interest Saturday, July 6th.

FOURTH LIBERTY LOAN AMERICANS SHOT

Liberty Bonds Being Turned

Out by Thousands at Government Engraving Plant

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Fourth Liberty Loan bonds now are being turned out by the thousands daily from the government's engraving plant, in preparation for the fourth loan campaign in October. They are identical in form and design as those of the third loan, but space has been left on each bond for later inserting of exact terms.

Three shifts of workmen, including many women and girls, are employed by the bureau of printing and engraving, and James R. Wilmett, the director, has promised to furnish a full supply of bonds by the time the fourth campaign opens.

The treasury is trying to devise a scheme of simplifying the registration of bonds by the attachment of coupons on which the purchaser may record necessary information to be mailed to the treasury. No plan has yet been adopted.

GIRAGOSSIAN WANTS TO

"SHOW" CONGRESS

BOSTON, July 2.—Garabed T. K. Giragossian, 120 Sutherland road, Brookline, inventor of "Garabed," which he claims produces unlimited energy without toll or expense, except for wear and tear of machinery, is not in the least discouraged because the group of scientists, who witnessed his demonstration on Commonwealth ave. Saturday, yesterday reported to the interior department that they do not believe its principles are sound, that his devices operate, or that they can result in the practical development or utilization of free energy.

Two of the five men who tested "Garabed," under an act of congress, were James Ambrose Moyer, director of the University Extension division of the state board of education, a graduate of the Lawrence Scientific school at Harvard, and Charles Jadd Norton, professor of heats and measurements at Tech.

Decision Reached Quickly
After going over the "Garabed" layout, it evidently did not take them long to come to a conclusion, because their adverse report was written and signed the day of the inspection.

Giragossian feels that the statement they issued does not correctly represent the situation, so he started for Washington last night with the intention of having another demonstration, this time before congress if possible. He says that inventors are always discredited at first, and that he did not expect he would be able to get a favorable report by just one effort.

"While I am not anxious to engage in a controversy with the committee," said he, last night, "I believe that I will prove that 'Garabed' will do everything that has been claimed. There will be no room for argument before I am through. The invention will speak for itself and the scoffing tongues will be stilled."

Offers Public Demonstration

"If there is no other way to prove to the world that my invention is what I say it is, I shall give a free demonstration on Boston common."

"The source of energy is already existent, and I am going to utilize it by means I have discovered. The principle is so extremely simple that the minute one sees it he wonders why he did not think of it before."

Moyer and Norton, the local members of the committee, from whom "Garabed" has received its official setback, say there is nothing more that can be said upon the matter than what is contained in their report.
